MUNDA FALLS TO AMERICANS

REPORT FDR GIVES UP ON SUBSIDY PLAN

WAGE FORMULA STANDS

Program Would Raise Living Costs a Little Without Changing Workers' Pay.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt was reliably reported today to have abandoned the subsidy method of holding down living costs, and instead plans to ask congress for permission to guarantee American farmers minimum prices for their basic crops.

Well-informed sources stated that this plan to utilize "minimum support prices" is the framework of the new stabilization program announced by President Roosevelt as being readied for congressional action after the summer recess.

Under the new program, the Commodity Credit Corporation will set minimum prices for many farm products. These prices, it was said, will be determined after wartime costs of farm production have been taken into consideration.

In some instances, it was disclosed, support prices for farm commodities will be set at levels above present ceilings, and will result in an increase in the cost of living. But this increase is stated to be "infinitesemal" and should not be countered by any general increase in the present level of wages paid to industrial workers.

Contrary to previously published reports, the program does not contemplate scrapping the "Little Steel" formula for granting wage increases.

The new anti-inflation program is still in the discussion stage, with War Food Administrator Marvin Jones conducting the studies. It is understood that the present roll backs in butter and

WONDER HOW

Authorities Puzzled Over Krug's Means of Escape.

GRAVENHURST, Ont. —(INS)— Oberleutnant Hans Peter Krug was returned to confinement here today as military authorities launched an intense investigation to determine his method of escape, and the procurement of forged credentials.

When recaptured early yesterday at North Bay, Ont., Krug had a Canadian registration card, and forged letters from various Ontario factories stating that he had been employed and could be recommended.

Gravenhurst authorities considered revoking privileges granted the Nazi flier and doubling his guard.

Krug's mysterious escape, details of which he refused to divulge, was his second from a Canadian prison camp.

ESTATE FIXED

M'Carrens Leaves $125,000 To Widow, Children.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—An estate in excess of $125,000 was left by the late John S. McCarrens, general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and president of the Forest City Publishing company, who was fatally shot by a business caller who then took his own life last July 24.

The bulk of the estate goes to his widow and four children.

SOLDIER HANGED

Convicted of Rape By Court Martial.

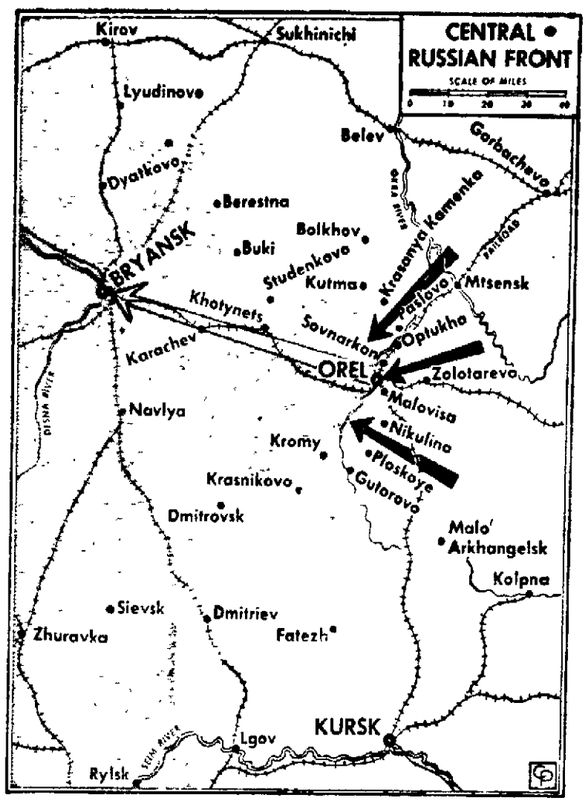
CAMP CLAIBOURNE, La.—(AP)—Private Walter J. Bohn, 26, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., convicted at a courtmartial trial of rape, larceny and housebreaking, was hanged at Camp Claibourne early today, the public relations office announced.

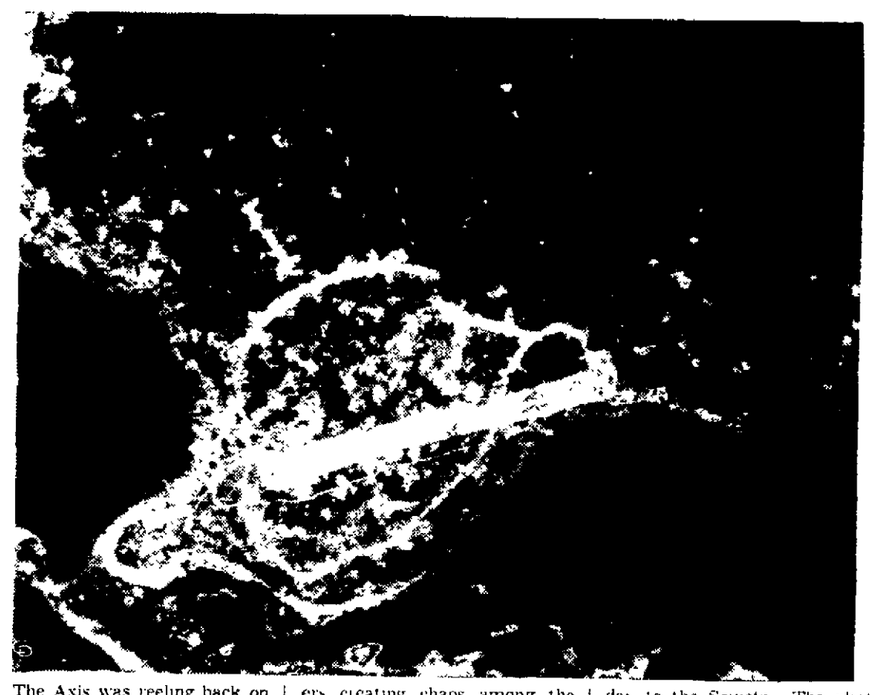
Bohn was convicted of raping a young Alexandria housewife.

PAPERS BOOST PRICE

BALTIMORE—(AP)—The Baltimore Sunpapers announced that effective Aug. 9 the carrier delivery price for the Sun and the Evening Sun would be advanced from 12 to 15 cents a week. Similar increases were announced yesterday by the Baltimore News-Post and Sunday American.

Where Axis Reels Under Allied Blows at Orel and at Munda





The Axis was reeling back on all fronts today and the map at left above shows how the Russians swept into Orel and began the expected push towards Bryansk with dive bombers creating chaos among the retreating Nazis. To the south of Orel (not shown on the map, but below Kursk) a similar victorious picture was being drawn at Belgorod which fell yesterday to the Soviets. The photo at right shows the bomb-pocked Munda airfield which the Americans took today after a bloody battle that cost at least 1,671 Japanese lives.

Bomb Tornado Hits Axis Last Escape Hatch on Isle Of Sicily.

LONDON —(UP)— Speculation here that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill may meet shortly prompted suggestions today that a favorable turn in the war had necessitated revision of long-range offensive plans.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—U. S. troops have plunged forward two to three miles on the north coastal road to Messina, and in the central sector of Sicily have seized Gaghano in a steady rollback of Germans west of Mt. Etna, an Allied communique announced today.

The Allied aerial tornado meanwhile reached a new climax as Flying Fortresses bludgeoned Messina, the last big Axis escape hatch to the mainland, and air and naval forces continued to blast open the path on the north coast.

British and Canadian troops in the center smashed ahead toward Adetno in "steady progress" forward of Centuripe and Regalbuto, headquarters said, but the Germans are resisting fiercely.

Gagliano lies back of a line between Troina—where Americans have gained toeholds in nearby hills — and Regalbuto which was seized by Canadians. Its fall helps straighten the Allied line and further endangers the German defense shielding withdrawal of large Axis forces from the south and central areas of Sicily.

The communique said a British Eighth army brigade accepted unconditional surrender of Catania, the east coast seaport and anchor of the Etna line, at 10:15 a. m. yesterday, and the British then swept northwest to take Misterbianco and cross the Simeto river to Paterno 10 miles away.

Other British Eighth army units were smashing ahead north up the east coast toward Taormina and Messina 55 miles away.

On the north coast the Americans are threatening San Fratello and late reports put them within two miles of that road junction, whose capture would cut the last 32-Day Fight Ends With 1,671 Jap Dead Counted At Airbase.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—American ground troops completed the occupation of Munda today, just 32 days after a beachhead was secured on New Georgia island and five weeks after U. S. invasion forces landed on the neighboring island of Rendova, June 30.

A special communique issued tonight from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters gave few details of the final assaults which crushed the enemy's stubborn but hopeless stand.

But preliminary announcement that 1,671 Japanese dead already had been counted testified to the bitterness of the struggle for the 4,000-foot long airdrome and protecting fortifications built by the Japanese since they occupied New Georgia one year ago. Since that time Munda had become the core of Japanese defenses in the central Solomons.

Activity of the battle-hardened American troops is now limited to mopping up operations.

A special communique said:

"Munda is now in our hands. All organized enemy resistance has ceased. Action is now limited to destruction of isolated enemy groups. 1,671 enemy dead have already been collected."

Hundreds of the enemy already had been slain by U. S. infantrymen advancing on their foxholes and coral caves with flame throwers.

The Japanese aircraft has been subjected to one of the fiercest aerial poundings of the Pacific war. To help soften its defenses U. S. naval forces bombarded the base on at least one occasion. Tanks and mortars were brought up for the assault after enemy resistance stiffened perceptibly within 2100 yards of the field itself.

Munda's capture placed the United States airforce within fighter plane range of the big Japanese feeder base of Rabaul, 450 miles to the northwest. Its possession by American forces will weaken the importance of such intervening Japanese bases as the Kahili airdrome of South Bou-

Traffic Begins to Move Over Route-30, Nearly Year Late

The long-delayed completion of the U. S. Route 30-N grade project west of the city was in sight today, and traffic was reported flowing over the highway although the detour signs are still up.

Work on the state's part of the half-million dollar project has been completed except for pouring tar in the joints in the paving, said Vance Grimes, Ashland division highway engineer, but another short delay loomed at the Mansfield end of the job.

Sufficient bricks have not been available for paving the end of West Fourth street where it joins the new section of road, and Grimes said it will require about two days to lay the bricks once they are trucked here from Wooster. Only three of 10 truckloads necessary for the work had arrived last night, he said.

The new project, which was scheduled for completion last Nov. 30, won't officially be opened to traffic until all the work is done and the state highway department accepts the job, Grimes said.

He was unable to predict when that might be, although the route is expected to be ready within a few days if the paving bricks are delivered promptly.

The state could have poured concrete at the Mansfield end of the project, but the city requested that bricks be used inside the city limits to match the rest of West Fourth street, the division engineer explained.

Lombardo Brothers Construction company, contractor on the job asked for an extension of time for completing it last fall. The work has been delayed repeatedly by bad weather, lack of help and inability to obtain materials, the contractor told the state.

Retailers Turn In $24,000 for War Stamp Sales

Winners in the Shangri-La war stamp sales contest, and a partial report of the total sales for the three-day period were announced today by the judges named by the Retail Merchants association, sponsor of the event.

Incomplete returns show that $24,000 in stamps were sold by Mansfield stores during the three-day campaign July 29, 30 and 31, according to V. H. Lodde, secretary of the association.

The contest was divided into three groups: the retail organization making the largest percentage gain over their quota; the retail organization having the greatest volume of sales of stamps; and the individual selling the most stamps.

Gloria Banks, a clerk at Kobacker's, was the individual prize winner. Her sales of stamps totaled $1,239. The quota that each clerk was asked to sell was $20.

The retail organization with the largest percentage gain was the Mayer Drug store, corner Sixth and Main streets. Their total

ANSWER WAITED

McNutt Expected To Reply To Wheeler On Dad Draft.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt may reply today to a demand by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., that the induction date for pre-Pearl Harbor fathers be moved back "at least one month."

At quitting time last night, McNutt's office reported that the message had not arrived but that it would be sent to McNutt for answer "as soon as it does." McNutt is vacationing at an unrevealed retreat.

HIGHWAY SEEN AIRPORT SNAG

Responsibility For Changing Course of Route 13 Looms as Delay Factor.

Relocation of State Route 13 at the proposed airport project north of Mansfield appeared today as the main stumbling block for the city in carrying out the expansion program as scheduled, and city officials were trying to clear that one out of the path.

After conferring with state highway officials, Mayor W. J. Locke said today that responsibility for getting the route relocated clearly rests with the city and that attempts are being made to obtain federal funds for the project.

"If we don't succeed in getting federal money for the work, it's up to us to work with the state in getting the job done," the mayor said.

The city and state highway departments are now awaiting word from Washington about the chances of obtaining federal aid for the relocation.

Meanwhile, Vance Grimes, Ashland division state highway engineer, said the fact that Route 13 is a federal aid route and the airport job is a federal Civil Aeronautics authority project should enable the city to receive government consideration in hav-

OUT FOR JUDGE

Schettler, Ward Get Petitions For November Balloting.

Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler and Marion Ward have taken out petitions as candidates for election as municipal judge at the November election, Philip Wolfe, secretary of the county board of elections said today.

Though the judicial ticket is non-partisan, Shettler is a Republican and Ward a Democrat having served two terms from 1938 to 1942 as city solicitor.

Judge Schettler, who served one term as city solicitor, has been municipal judge since February, 1943. He was appointed by Gov. John W. Bricker to finish the unexpired term of Judge G. E. Kalbbench when he was elected judge bench when he was elected judge of the common pleas court.

Though petitions for other city offices have already been filed, petitions for the judgeship need not be filed until Sept. 3.

Stabilization Director Orders Meat Prices Stay Same.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Ceiling prices on meat were assured of continuation today on the basis of government established grades following the first official directive issued by Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

The directive, announced last night by the Office of Economic Stabilization as "regulation No. 1," continued in force the meat grading and labelling rules established by the Office of Price Administration.

SOLDIERS WANT JOBS, NOT DOLE

That's Opinion of Sen. Ball on Veterans Aid Plan.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Republican party was advised today by Senator Ball of Minnesota, one of its youngest national officeholders, to counter President Roosevelt's six-point war veterans' proposal with a "jobs for soldiers" program.

"The president's suggestions for benefits for the returning soldiers are fine and everyone can support them," Ball said, "but they seem to overlook this one thing that is going to be uppermost in every soldier's mind: 'Where can I get a job to support myself and my family?' It's all very well to say that these men are to have mustering out pay and other benefits, but they don't want a dole.

"The trouble with the New Deal is that while it has been broadening social security benefits, it has been gradually throttling private enterprise."

Freeman Resigns After 12 Years as Sheriff's Deputy

Deputy sheriff in Richland county for 12 years, Glenn P. Freeman has submitted his resignation effective next Monday, Sheriff Frank E. Robinson announced today.

Freeman who has served as chief deputy since Sheriff Robinson took office two and a half years ago, said he had decided to leave the sheriff's staff because of the condition of his health.

"I haven't been feeling well for some months and I have decided I need a rest. If I don't feel better by the end of a month, I plan to enter the Cleveland clinic for treatment," Freeman said.

Expressing regret over Freeman's decision, Sheriff Robinson said he had requested the deputy to re-consider and suggested that he take a leave of absence. The sheriff said Freeman informed him this morning that he first wanted to regain his health and indicated after that he may enter some other field.

Freeman was appointed a deputy sheriff 12 years ago by Walter Underwood, former sheriff. He first served as motorcycle officer and upon being re appointed when Robinson took office as sheriff became chief deputy. He lives in Bellville.

Happy Catanians Toss Almonds At British Amid Loud 'Vivas'

By RICHARD TREGASKIS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

CATANIA, Aug. 5—(Delayed)—The British Eighth army's entry into Catania today was greeted by the usual throng of Sicilians joyously clapping their hands, throwing almonds at the Britons and shouting "Viva Ingleterra!" or simply "Viva!"—Italian equivalents of "Hail England!" and "Hooray!"

We found the city badly wrecked from earlier bombings but many shops and buildings were still standing untouched. Catanians who had previously fled the city are now streaming back riding carts, horses and mules and afoot.

British patrols first entered the city last night, following this morning by forward elements of the main body. In their advance up the coastal road, the troops met little opposition except from nests of pillboxes and barbed wire at the southern extremity of the city and from one knot of enemy infantry which was driven out last night.

The Germans probably left only a few companies to fight a delaying action in Catania. Two companies of Italians promptly surrendered while the remaining Germans fought on stubbornly and withdrew under cover of darkness during the night.

The enemy left many areas heavily mined, which are being carefully circumvented by advancing traffic. They also tried to block roads with artillery fire during the night but the firing has ceased now.

The time is now 9:30 p. m. we passed the enemy's sentry gate before the town at 8:15, where the leading elements of the main British Eighth army had passed unopposed this morning.

Italians told us the enemy withdrawal began three days ago and that the Germans spent the last five days sowing minefields. Axis abandonment of the city had been expected by the British for several days, since the recent capture of key enemy positions facing the British left flank, at Centuripe and Regalbuto, rendered straightening of the German line inevitable.

Allied aircraft had been busy the last three days strafing enemy columns of personnel and supplies withdrawing northward.

Plane Production Problems Turned Over To WMC Boss.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— White House Secretary Stephen T. Early revealed today that airplane production problems had been discussed at a meeting of the War Mobilization board two weeks ago and that the problem had been turned over to Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.

Early's statement was in response to reports that War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes had called in Bernard M. Baruch, who is an adviser to the Byrnes group, to work on lagging aircraft production.

Early said he had checked Byrnes' office and was told that "at a meeting of the War Mobilization board two weeks ago the manpower shortage and airplane production questions came up."

"The matter was discussed and turned over to Mr. McNutt to try to work something out," he added.

PLAN APPROVED

Maternity Aid Proposal Sent To Washington.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A "master plan," for the childbirth care of wives of Ohioans in the armed forces was sent to Washington for approval today from the office of State Health Director R. H. Markwith.

A plan was drafted following a conference between Dr. Markwith, Drs. Edwin F. Daily and J. M. Saunders of the children's bureau in Washington and representatives of the Ohio State Medical association and the Ohio Hospital association.

REPORTS ATTACK

Union Head's Son Says He Was Beaten.

AKRON (INS)— George Bass, jr., 17-year-old son of the president of the CIO's United Rubber Workers-Goodrich local, reported to police today he had been attacked for the second time in less than a week.

Young Bass said he stopped his automobile to investigate a man lying in the street and that two men jumped on him and beat him. The youth required hospital attention for cuts and bruises.

Ask City to Give Negroes Rights to Pools and Parks

More than 100 Mansfield Negro residents today petitioned city officials for the right to use the city's parks and swimming pools on an equal basis with white people.

Addressed to Mayor W. J. Locke, Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff, and members of council, the petition bears the signatures of 105 colored signers, headed by Rev. A. J. McCreary, pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

Pointing out that they are citizens and have the voting privileges of other Mansfielders, the petitioners asked officials to authorize immediate use of city entertainment facilities.

"There doesn't have to be any race discrimination problem in Mansfield," the petition said.

Although Mayor Locke said he believes the solution is in the building of a park pool for the colored people, he said he would ask city council and the parks board to name committees to meet with other city officials and a representative committee of colored residents to discuss the request contained in the petition.

MOMENTUM: Red Push Gains, Threatens to Circle Kharkov

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Victory-flushed Soviet forces wheeling southwestward from captured Belgorod today by-passed Kharkov, Russia's fourth city and industrial capital of the Ukraine, in a flanking drive threatening to encircle the great German-held base.

Northwestward 250 miles, Red army forces surged forward in a pincers maneuver against Bryansk, most powerful stronghold on the lower central front against which the Soviet conquerors of Orel were moving in hot pursuit of the tattered German units.

The Red army's first summer offensive was picking up momentum fast, its pace and power beginning to rival the winter campaign which smashed the Germans westward from the Volga at Stalingrad to the near approaches of the Dnieper.

Heeding Premier-Marshal Josef Stalin's order to give the battered enemy no rest, the Russians fanned swiftly out from Orel and Belgorod in drives threatening to undermine the whole German defense position in the east.

The fall of Belgorod, 40 miles north of Kharkov, laid open the German flank north of the war torn city keying the whole eastern Ukraine. Leaping to the opportunity, Soviet striking forces passed by Kharkov and swung around in what shaped up as a determined and confident effort to cut the railroad lines radiating from the major communications hub.

Russian motorized units were streaming westward from the Orel area to reinforce the armies which launched the synchronized drives against Bryansk from the north, east, and southeast.

The concentric drives against Orel had carried the Russian columns northwest of that city down into the German flank to within less than 30 miles of Bryansk, which is 75 miles northwest of Orel.

The Red army also was reported shifting troops down from the

SEETHING: Unrest In Italy Stirred by Allied Victories

(By Associated Press)

BERN, Switzerland—Failure of the new Italian government to give any outward signs that it is seeking peace renewed the unrest of the Italian people today—an unrest accentuated by news of the fall of Catania, Orel and Belgorod.

The Milan correspondent of the Zurich Die Tat reported yesterday's cabinet session had aroused tremendous interest among the Italian people, "all of whom expected Premier Badoglio to report on the dramatic situation in Italy and its wish for peace."

"Everyone is talking of peace these decisive hours and the possibility of re-establishing Italy's honor," the correspondent wrote. He added that the Allied conquests of Orel and Catania "caused an enormous sensation. The people asked each other 'how can Badoglio still hesitate?'"

The cabinet, however, gave no sign Badoglio was seeking peace. The announced result of

Her Fiance Prepares Test Of Curiosity

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Men have the right to determine before marriage—before it is too late, whether their prospective wives are of the too-curious, too-jealous type.

Possibly I'm crediting one fiance with more wit than he really possessed, but I think the young man referred to in the following letter gave his fiancee a clever test.

I suspect that if she acts now, as she seems inclined, he'll be convinced that she'll be the kind of wife who'll be inclined to steam-open his mail, listen in on his phone calls from the extension, and peer in the contents of his clothes pockets while he's sleeping. There's no doubt about how men feel about such things.

The young woman writes:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been engaged for several months to a boy who has been in the service five months. He writes every day and tells me he's true, how much he misses me and that I'm the only girl for him.

Recently he sent me a package which he wanted me to save for him, but thinking it was a gift for me, I opened it and found it contained letters from 12 or 15 girls he has been corresponding with. I was quite upset. Being curious I read some of them and although they're only friendly notes, I find he has been dating some of these girls, which makes me wonder if he really loves me.

I gave up all my boy friends when we became engaged and he assured me he was doing the same thing, and now I dread opening his letters, as I can't believe him any more. I can't tell him I know about these girls, because that would be a give-away that I read the letters. The only way out to me seems to be a broken engagement, but that will be hard to do, as I'm very much in love.

T. Y.

My reply to her is:

I wonder if your fiance wasn't testing you, to see if you would open the box and, if you did, what your reaction would be. It would be extremely extraordinary for a man to send such letters to a girl he expected to marry, for safekeeping.

It seems to me that you failed in the test in several ways. First of all, I don't see how you could have mistaken the box for a gift, if he plainly stated it was to be saved for him, it would probably appear to him that your curiosity got the better of you.

Since as you say, they were only friendly notes, you might be expected to understand that they're the sort that a service man gets from many of his acquaintances, without encouragement. Everybody has been urged to write their friends in the service as a contribution to morale, as you should know. An engagement doesn't mean that a boy or girl must give up all acquaintanceships or correspondence with other girls or boys. I'm sure a soldier can go out with a girl without in any way compromising his engagement.

If my diagnosis of this case is correct, you'll do yourself no good by breaking your engagement over this. If he doesn't love you, you'll have better evidence of it.

If I've misjudged the young man's wit, and he didn't prepare a test for you, he's an odd type who'd probably be an odd husband.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

As Ruth Hayes finished, I felt as if a ball inside me had suddenly turned over and started revolving furiously. But instead of obeying her, I increased the blinking of my eyes which I had kept up intermittently during the questioning and spoke in apparent nervous panic.

"I'm — I'm sorry, Madam, but my eyes are so bad-like that they start to run like everything if I look straight out. The doctor said I must be awful careful of them or I'd have to go back to the hospital. Please excuse me, Madam."

"Oh, get along wih you!" she snarled disgustedly. "You're absolutely the poorest excuse for a maid that I've ever seen, and I've seen some beauties in my time. But I've one more question. Have you been on any other floor this morning?"

"No, Madam."

"That's all, then. Shut the door as you go out."

I tried to move slowly as I went out of the room but found it hard work, for my muscles were urging my feet to race away from the baleful woman standing in Room 1720.

I closed the door behind me, but even as I did so, Dickey's bellow of "Maid!" sounded from 1718.

I lost no time in getting to him and closing the door. Room service had been functioning, I saw, for I found him surveying with disgust a dainty tray holding tea, toast and orange juice.

"Tell me everything, quickly," he said, adding, "you like this sort of truck. Suppose you go to it."

"I'll drink a cup of tea," I said, pouring out a cup, "and I'll talk while it's cooling a bit. To make things jibe with my story, I have to go over to the opposite side, and pretend to be doing three rooms of my 'regulars'."

Clenches His Fists.

Hastily I ran through the conversation between Ruth Hayes and myself, and Dicky clenched his fists as he listened.

"Sometime I'm going to hack that woman into pieces," he muttered, "after I've flayed every inch of skin off her."

"Oh, leave a few inches!" I pleaded laughingly. Then, draining my cup of tea, I turned toward the door.

But Dicky stopped me.

"She doesn't know whether you've left here or not," he said. "Drink that orange juice and nibble a piece of toast while I tell you what's been arranged for the next hour. Sit down!"

I obeyed, and, as I ate and drank, listened carefully while he told me what had been planned.

"Dad says Olina will reach the bank at eleven, and shortly after that she'll come over here. So we may reasonably expect Ruth Hayes to leave this floor and go down to the lobby about eleven, or shortly after.

I looked at my wrist watch. "It's just twenty minutes of eleven now," I said.

"You'll have time to attend to at least one of your regulars before she goes," he said, grinning. "Now, then she reaches the lobby and takes the place where she told Olina to meet her, one of the guards downstairs will flash the telephone operator. She will immediately plug in this line, and the lines of the three guards on this floor, and give us the lowdown. I'll yell 'Maid!' and you can come a-running. Then we'll all take our battle stations,—all of us out of sight except you, for you'll have to be passing up and down so that if Olina should have to squeak 'Maid!' you'd be able to hear her. Dad told Olina, didn't he, that if Ruth tried to urge her into the room, she was to yell 'Maid!'?"

"Yes. Olina understands that," I answered.

"Let's hope she doesn't lose her head and forget her instructions," he said. "And now I'll let you off that other piece of toast."

"It would choke me," I told him truthfully, for I was in no mood for food.

"Okay, Okay," he said. "Run along now to your mythical 'regulars,' and tip me off if you see the Wilderness Woman going down in the elevator."

Keeps Eye on Ruth.

"I'll use my eye on her," I promised, and kept my word. I went directly to the rooms I had designated as my "regulars," and put each into carefully planned disorder. Then I made each up again, making constant occasions for coming into the hall.

Finally I was rewarded by seeing Ruth Hayes, in full street costume, signaling the elevator. Waiting only until the elevator had started down, I fairly raced across the corridor to 1718, which was still ajar.

"She's gone down, Dicky!" I said excitedly.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Aug. 7.

Stability, poise and common sense should be faithfully applied this day, to putting on a firm and enduring basis the windfalls, graces and fertile fulfilments that should have been precipitated and earned during immediately preceding periods. Such fruition comes as rewards of merit, labor and high purpose, and not fortuitiously or by chance "fate." The present task is to solidify, expand, crystallize and establish for permanency and security.

Those whose birthday it is should apply themselves diligently and sensibly to pleasing recent culmination of good fortune and proven worth and responsibility by past performances, by seeking security and increasing and enduring stability. System, attention to details, tying up loose ends, perhaps wrestling with some upsetting or surprising developments may be in order. Sound ideas, programs and policies need not eliminate incidental fun, celebration, or romance. Others may offer wise counsel which may be confidently sought, but with discretion.

A child born on this day may have stability and dependability of character, with proper qualities for wisely managing and increasing a probable inheritance or gift.

A Mother Goes Back To School

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In almost any city or town in the United States, any person who cares to do so, may keep on going to school, or go back to school. He certainly can keep on learning as long as he lives. Parents, as well as their children, can do so.

With some one to care for the baby, the young mother might profitably attend class an evening or two a week in a local night school or college. As her children grow old enough to take care of themselves she easily can do so. So can her husband. It is much more constructive than spending nearly every evening at Bingo, bridge or just "having a good time." You can see why the following letter pleased me. I hope it might inspire some other mothers to go back to school.

A Mother's Letter.

"Dear Dr. Myers: Last September I wrote you I had gone back to school after an absence of 16 years. I hadn't taught for 14 years because of the birth of my daughter now a freshman in high school. I asked your advice about continuing with classes as people seemed to think I was 'showing off,' and since my husband's education was so limited that he mistook my reading periods as waste of time and evasion of home responsibilities.

"You answered my letter and sent me the book list I requested, from which I derived a great deal of help. You asked me to write again after several months letting you know of my progress.

"I did go on as you advised and have enjoyed it so much. I took extension work in our town the first semester and was more thrilled about an 'A' I received on one of my papers than some women would be over a fur coat or piece of jewelry.

Anxious for College Degree.

"I didn't know if I could take the second semester's course because of finances, but decided to budget and to wear 'hand me downs' and think I will be able to make it. I'm enjoying this course, too.

"I never fail to read your column. I wish to thank you a million times for your encouraging letter. Whenever my spirits were low and my courage wavered, I would re-read it and decided that if you, who don't know me, had faith in what I am doing, surely I should have faith in myself.

"You assured me I was doing the thing which would prove my salvation. You said you believed in me and I shed tears over that. It was so good to have encouragement after some of the 'knocks' I had received because I was reentering college at 38. I am only in my second year, and am wondering how long it will be before I can have a degree. How proud I would be to go to college with my daughter!"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BUT CAN YOU TAKE IT?

ANYBODY CAN remain loyal to the tactics which he knows to be sound, so long as he is "dishing it out" thereby. But can you "take it" if the very best move on a hand proves to be the most expensive to your side, when the worst possible bridge would have brought you maximum results? If you can, you have the winning attitude, the one which will make you a successful player in the long run. If you lose faith in your own soundness, and become a guesser, it will cost you plenty ultimately.

If, without looking at your hand, you were analyzing the merits of the various suits which might be led against that bidding, wouldn't you rate them approximately in this order:

1. Worst lead of all, the first suit bid by the dummy, diamonds, because your lead probably would start the declarer on his job of setting it up before the dummy's side entries got disturbed or your own side worked on its own suit.

2. Best lead of all, the unbid suit, hearts, especially since it is a major.

3. Ranking between best and worst, the other suits bid by the opponents, spades and clubs.

Yet, as it turned out, this time the result was exactly the reverse. When you can see all of the hands, you can note that the declarer automatically runs 12 tricks if you lead a heart, 11 if you lead a spade or club, and only 10 if you open a diamond.

Please, if you got a bottom score on such a deal for making the soundest lead, while the worst player in the game got a top for making the most unsound one, don't let it make you a wild man the next time, tossing away all you have learned. In the long haul you will far outscore the unsound player with your greater acumen, no matter what happens on some one unhappy occasion.

Tomorrow's Problem.

If South sticks in a hazardous No Trump bid, but East winds up in 4-Hearts, how should he play this deal for maximum results after the spade K is led?

MIRROR TRICK

If you need a new mirror frame try this trick. Take some cotton lace about four inches wide. Dip it in wet plaster of Paris and stick it around one of the rimless round mirrors. When the plaster dries you will have a firm frame that is like frosted lace and snowy white.

Up to the time of the Civil war each American soldier cooked for himself.

Newman Gives Recipe for a Salad Dressing

By BETSY NEWMAN

HAVEN'T YOU all eaten salads that were flat? Even if the vegetables, greens or fruits of which it is composed are fresh and crisp, a flavorless dressing can ruin it. And a peppy one can save even a somewhat uninteresting salad. I'll give you some easy to make but interesting dressings to use over your summer salads.

Salmon Loaf
Creamed New Potatoes
Fresh Vegetable Salad
Lima Beans
Cherry Pie Iced Tea

Tomato French Dressing

1 tbsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. salt
3 tbsps. sugar
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
1 c. salad oil
½ c. vinegar
½ can tomato soup or strained tomatoes

Combine dry ingredients, blend in oil, add onion and let stand 10 to 15 minutes; then add vinegar and soup or strained tomatoes. Beat until dressing is thick and well blended. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. Makes approximately 2½ cups dressing.

Chiffonade Dressing

1¼ c. Tomato French dressing
1 hard-cooked egg chopped fine
1 tbsp. green pepper, chopped
1 tbsp. chopped pimento

Fresh Vegetable Dressing

1¼ c. Tomato French dressing
3 tbsps. radishes
1 tbsps. Scallions, chopped
2 tbsps. cucumber, chopped

Mix thoroughly. This dressing is good served over lettuce.

This year—more than twice as many people are demanding Boscul Coffee!

MOM: You can thank rationing for that coffee, son — that's how I discovered Boscul. It's so rich and full of flavor it helped us get more cups of good coffee for our coupons.

SON: Mmmm — boy! I'd sure like to wake up to an aroma like that every day.

MOM: Our grocer says Boscul's better because they're spending more for coffees now. It's the rich, mellow mountain coffee beans that make the difference.

SON: There's a difference all right—in every swallow. Gee, this morning I discovered how good coffee can be. Stick to this habit till I get home again, will you Mom?

So many people ask for Boscul today that your grocer may sometimes be out of stock. Keep asking — it's worth waiting for!

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—There was one evening in Sicily that I shall never forget.

We were following General Patton's Seventh army into Palermo—Ernie Pyle of Scripps-Howard, Jack Thompson of the Chicago Tribune, and I. We overtook the 82nd Airborne division, and as Thompson had jumped with their paratroopers on the invasion we decided to stop overnight.

This was no imposition, because everybody was sleeping in the open, on the ground. We just rolled in, picked out trees with low branches so we could hang mosquito nets over our bedrolls, borrowed some water to fill our helmets, which are the only wash basins available in the field, and were soon at home. A major we knew gave us some heated C rations.

Clapper

It was dusk when we walked over to call on the commanding general. He was sitting at a small table under an olive tree. With him was a colonel, who was playing solitaire. The general was reading a book of Stephen Vincent Benet, but he said Kipling was his real favorite, because he wrote of soldier of all time. The general quoted some favorite passages. I remember one:

"I have eaten your bread and salt.
I have drunk your water and wine.
The deaths ye died I have watched beside.
And the lives ye led were mine."

That, the general said, was why Kipling wrote of the soldier as he was—he lived with him.

The moon was coming up. The colonel folded up his cards. It was that quiet pause which comes so often at sundown, when men say little and you know their thoughts are far away. It is not good to talk about home.

And so the general got to talking about courage. Three of the group had done parachute jumping. The general said the night before a jump was the hardest time for him. The colonel said the worst part of it was standing at the open door of the plane looking down and waiting for the signal to jump. Then seconds seem like frightful hours. Those long pauses have now been eliminated and men jump out a second apart, one almost pushing the man ahead of him. Thompson said the trouble with his jump was that he was the last man out of the plane and there was nobody to push him. He just had to step out by sheer willpower.

The colonel said courage was a combination of factors. He said that all volunteer outfits like the paratroopers had a naturally high average of courage. But he said individuals varied and the weaker ones were brought along by group courage, built up over a long period. So that although a man may be frightened out of his boots he will go ahead anyway to keep up with his group and prove himself as good as the others. The colonel thought that was the strongest force in soldiering.

It became quite cool and peaceful and quiet. Tired soldiers were sleeping under olive trees all around. The general said: "What a wasteful thing all of this is. Look at all those vehicles around here. All that is being used up in war."

But I suspect that he must have been thinking of his men, some of whom were sleeping back along the road and who will never wake up. The camp was still now. The general said, "If you will excuse me I think I will take a bath."

We picked our way over to our bedrolls. You had to be careful not to step on those rumpled blankets scattered around on the ground, or to trip on the heavy field shoes that protruded from them.

15 MILLION GET 'BAD NEWS' ON INCOME TAXES

Forms Sent Out To Third of Taxpayers Who Must Kick In To Get Current.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Some 15,000,000 income taxpayers today began receiving bad news in the form of a notice that September 15 is the deadline for getting current in their payments of federal taxes on this year's income.

Big as weekly withholdings may seem, they do not represent "paid in full" receipts for many taxpayers. If the taxpayer is single and his income is less than $2,700, or married and his income is less than $3,500, he probably is all-square through the withholding feature.

But one-third of the taxpayers are not all-square and on September 15 they must do something about it. They must file a declaration known as Form 1040-ES and enclose a check for half the amount due to make them current That will take the place of the third quarterly installment formerly paid on that date. The other half will be due on December 15.

Following is the declaration affected taxpayers will be required to fill out:

1. Estimated income and victory tax for 1943.
2. Estimated income and victory tax withheld during entire year.
3. Estimated tax after deducting estimated tax withheld (item 1 minus item 2).
4. Total payments to collector during 1943 for 1942 income tax.
5. Unpaid balance of estimated tax (item 3 minus item 4).
6. Amount paid with this declaration (not less than one-half of item 5).

After filling in the above, the taxpayer will add his social security number, print his name and address, sign the declaration, make out his check as directed in item 6, and mail it and the declaration to the internal revenue collector of his district.

With those blanks which the treasury will mail this month will go an instruction sheet, on the reverse side of which is a work sheet for figuring out the amount of income and victory taxes due for 1943. It includes a chart of figures which shows the amount of income tax due on various net incomes.

WIFE RESCUES HAROLD LLOYD IN HOME BLAZE

$2,000,000 Worth of Silent Destroyed In Vault at Actor's Estate.

(By Associated Press)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.—(AP)—Fire, instrumental in launching Harold Lloyd's acting career as a youth, nearly cost his life 37 years later.

Lloyd, now a motion picture producer, narrowly missed death yesterday when flames, following an explosion, swept through a storage vault on his elaborate estate, destroying many of the early-day comedy films through which he achieved fame.

The 49-year-old Lloyd and seven firemen were overcome by fumes from burning film and from swimming pool chlorinating compound released by the blast, but none was seriously affected. Lloyd collapsed at the door of the film vault, just as his wife, the former Actress Mildred Davis, reached his side. She dragged him to safety. Cause of the fire was not determined.

A spokesman for Lloyd estimated the value of the film, made in the silent era of motion pictures, at $2,000,000.

Lloyd, when 12, got his first acting job in Omaha, Neb., because he did not follow others to the scene of a downtown fire, he once related. Remaining behind to gaze into a store window, he was approached by an actor who offered him a part with a stock company, in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

Today's explosion occurred in the film vault but it did not spread to the gymnasium and other service buildings on the estate, which the one-time actor who made glassless, horn-rim spectacles famous, says costs him $50,000 a year to operate. The mansion itself was untouched by flames. The grounds contain a nine-hole golf course, tennis courts, waterfalls and acres of flowers and formal gardens.

None of those overcome suffered severe injury, although Roy Brooks, Lloyd's former secretary, was blown from his bed.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union under the presidency of David Dubinsky, is one of those sanctimonious outfits which are supposed to give tone to the American Federation of Labor and to compensate the heavy-handed rascality of the operating engineers, the hod-carriers and common laborers and other rackets. It proudest boast is that it keeps books and renders accounts to it members and to the world at large. I was one of those who accepted this reputation without question, along with the fallacy of the selfless altruism of that pious old nepotist and money-grabber, Daniel Tobin, the president of the teamsters' union. I have already apologized to myself for gulping the Tobin myth and I am now about to fork my way through a platter of crow and beg my pardon for believing all that I read and what some of my friends in the unioneering trade told me about Dubinsky's garment workers.

Pegler

A lawyer of my acquaintance tells me that unless Mr. Dubinsky or his union, as such, has a license from President Roosevelt or his agent, to carry on the underground activities in Europe for which it levied a compulsory tax on its members a short time ago, there would seem to be a conflict between this program and the act of congress which forbids trading with the enemy. The union announced recently that from its levy of one day's pay from 315,000 members which yielded $1,300,000 for various purposes, $50,000 had been allocated to the Italian-American labor council (whatever that is) and the Italian underground movement, and $35,000 to underground movements other than the Italian.

Now, obviously, these underground movements operate in the enemy's own countries or in territory occupied and controlled by him and any remittances of money to agents in such territory would constitute trading with the enemy, an offense of which our department of justice takes a very serious view in most cases. Of course it is possible that the union has obtained a license to send this $85,000 into the enemy's country for this purpose, for it is not only a union but political party in itself, the nucleus of the so-called American Labor party, which does not represent and is not American at all but strictly European in its political aims and in most of its dominant personalities.

And the so-called American Labor party is a minor agency or offshoot of the New Deal party, which does not pretend to operate according to the American political tradition, with its own ticket of candidates, but, being European by nature, uses the European minority-party method of existing as a parasite on the other parties. It indorses New Deal candidates and, by the power of organization, backed by the power of coercion over its members, turns out quite a block of votes on the ALP ticket, which entitle it to special political consideration from the New Deal. For this reason it may have been granted a special permit to trade with the enemy as such trading is defined in the act of congress, but if so the only reason would be political because the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union has no more right to engage in such operations than the Port Chester Garden club, the BPOE or the Silver Shirts.

How does anybody know who gets this $85,000, and how does anybody know it isn't being used by the enemy himself? Nobody knows except those who are in charge of the underground activities and they, of course, won't tell and there goes our pretty myth about the scrupulous accountancy of Mr. Dubinsky's union. The members, themselves, did not all want to be a party to this but they had no say about it. The union told their bosses to check off one day's pay and that was all there was to it. If they objected to the point of refusal they would be fired for not keeping themselves in good standing with their union, even though their money was being taken from them for charities to which some of them had already made their own contributions and to a number of foreign relief organizations, and even though their work might be vital war work, as the phrase goes.

Incidentally, more and more unions are taking it on themselves to decide how much the members shall give to the Red Cross and other organizations and some are begining to move in and claim, in return, a share of the Community Funds on the ground that their social activities are meritorious like those of Red Cross and the USO.

Mr. Dubinsky's union also has been collecting by check-off an amount equal to 3 per cent of its members' pay, but in addition to their pay, from employers, as a vacation fund and has been sprinkling new-mown rose petals all over Mr. Dubinsky and his close associates for obtaining this vacation pay. But when time came for the union to distribute the checks, instead of paying the members such small interest as they would have been entitled to on the money which had lain to their credit in the union treasury as it accumulated month by month, the union actually deducted 3 per cent as a bookkeeping charge.

I have simply got to be more skeptical about unions

FARMERS MEET

Two Congressmen To Attend Picnic Sunday, Aug. 15.

Wheat farmers from northcentral Ohio will talk over their food production problems and hear two members of congress at their second annual picnic Sunday, Aug. 15, at Mary Fate park in Plymouth.

Mrs. Frances Bolton, member of congress from Cleveland, and Congressman J. Harry McGregor, representing the 17th district, have accepted invitations to address the farmers on the nation's food outlook. Also scheduled to speak is William Lemke, former North Dakota congressman, who has been active in the campaign against the Triple-A program.

Business men and others in the Richland and Huron county area who are interested in the farm problem will be urged to attend the meeting, Fackler said. The Ganges band will play. In the event of inclement weather, the picnic will be in the Plymouth school auditorium.

HUNT FOR MORE FLOOD VICTIMS

Rescue Crews Retrace Path of Inundation That Cost 14 Lives; Damage High.

(By International News Service)

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va.—Roving bands of rescue crews pursued the grim task today of scouring inundated central West Virginia for additional victims of raging flood waters which have claimed according to initial reports, 14 known dead, nine missing and property damage estimated at over $2,000,000.

Braxton county was hardest hit by the swirling waters of the freak "flash flood" which rushed upon thousands of mountaineers without warning, but Calhoun and Ritchie counties also came in for a heavy share of the death and destruction.

Disaster officials of the Red Cross declared the greater part of the fatalities had occurred so far because the swollen waters over-ran the mountain communities while a majority of the trapped persons were sleeping.

State Police Sergt. L. L. Waugh reported the discovery of five bodies at Heaters, Braxton county, and said he had been reliably informed six others had been recovered at Copen, 20 miles away. At least five more persons were listed as missing at these two rural communities. Little hope was held for their safety.

State Trooper R. M. Reger, at Parkersburg, disclosed that Floyd Nelson, 52, and his entire family of four children were missing and believed drowned when the heavy Island creek swept away their tiny shack near Girta in Ritchie county.

Welcome To—

A daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Kelly, Mansfield R. D. 3, yesterday at General hospital.

Up and Down THE STREET

You've probably been hearing a lot about "signs of the times" and here's another. In the window of the Ingraham-Martin garage sits a black and yellow Piper training plane and on the side of the plane is hung a sign "Not For Sale." Evidently the garage proprietors have had so many inquiries from Mansfield's air-minded youngsters that they have put up the sign to save the trouble of answering their questions over and over again.

One of the Mansfield fire department's old "war horses," a 1919 model pumper, had been sold today to make room at Central station for the new pumper the city acquired recently. Although the old pumper hadn't been in active use for several years, it served a valuable service as a source of spare parts for some of the department's out-moded pumpers when they broke down. The 24-year-old engine was purchased by the Cates Auto Wrecking company for $125.

While there's disagreement about the age of the Johns Park watermelon festival scheduled for tonight, Mansfielders agree that the annual party is old enough to be considered a traditional summer entertainment. A story in yesterday's News-Journal said tonight's festival will be the 34th at the north side park. That was the information provided by members of the festival committee. A little later a Mansfielder called to say the watermelon festivals were started in 1924, making this one the 19th annual party. At any rate, there are 175 watermelons and plenty of ice cream, cake, soft drinks, and sandwiches ready for the party tonight, and the weatherman apparently is the only fellow who can spoil the party now.

DRUNKS BLAMED FOR RIOTING

Vancouver Mayor Jeered as He Tries To Calm Turbulent Mob.

(By Associated Press)

VANCOUVER, Wash.—Chief of Police John Flaker today blamed "hoodlums" and "pay-day drunks" for inciting a riot last night which police finally dispersed with tear gas.

Three men were hospitalized and eight jailed.

Chief Flaker said the suspected ringleader of the rioters was in custody but no charges had been filed.

Hundreds of persons drinking in waterfront beer taverns where the trouble started piled into the street. They were joined by soldiers and pedestrians. A crowd of approximately 1,000 persons quickly gathered. Taunts were flung at police and fighting broke out.

Military police called to the scene had all soldiers back in their barracks within an hour. City police, aided by auxiliary civilian defense police, deputy sheriffs, state patrolmen and firemen who laid hoses as a threat finally scattered the crowd.

The demonstration broke out again later when some 600 persons gathered in front of the Vancouver police station.

Police called authorities at nearby Kelso and Longview and asked that state guard units be mobilized. Mayor John Hogg appealed to the crowd from the police station steps to disperse. He was jeered and a rock crashed through the glass pane in the station door.

Police then charged, firing tear gas shells until the crowd dispersed.

The soldier over whom the trouble started, was taken to Vancouver Barracks hospital with skull injuries. The soldier, police said, fought with a civilian in a cafe early in the evening. He was ejected but returned later to assail the cafe "bouncer."

PREDICTS VAST NEW INDUSTRY

Senator Praises Oil-From-Coal Experimental Work.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) Demonstration plants for producing oil from coal would provide the basis of a vast new industry which would give jobs to soldiers and war workers in the post-war period, Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), said today.

Here to inspect an experimental hydrogenation plant and to witness the process of manufacturing petroleum fuels from coal, O'Mahoney told a press conference results of experiments at the Bureau of Mines station here "have been so satisfactory that it seems now desirable to extend this experimentation on a larger basis."

The experimental plant was built with a recent $100,000 congressional allotment.

YOUR PIE CRUST WILL BE TOUGH

Millers Say Shortage Of Red Wheat To Affect Dough.

NEW YORK —(AP)— American housewives may not actually be forced to make dough-less pies this winter but they may have to stretch imaginations — and supplies.

Milling circles reported today that despite heavy wheat production and enormous carry-overs, there was a meager amount of the soft red winter wheat used in making flour for pies and cakes.

The only solution, millers say, is to blend hard grains with soft to produce a flour which may result in a tougher, but still satisfactory, pie crust.

RECEIPTS DROP

County Follows State Trend In Sales Tax Revenue.

Richland county followed the state trend in showing a drop in sales tax receipts for the week ending July 24, the state treasurer's report said today.

Richland county collections amounted to $10,325 for the week, about $200 less than for the corresponding week last year, but more than $800 ahead of the previous week's receipts for 1943.

The county's total sales tax receipts for the year now are $314,283, approximately $9,000 higher than in the first seven months of last year.

Increases in the purchase of women's clothing has helped to offset tax losses in other departments during July, the state report showed.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Eddie Davis has, in the past dozen or more years, become a New York institution in New York night life, as a co-owner of a cafe and entertainer.)

Eddie Davis Says—

FIFTY-SECOND STREET may be Swing Lane to some, the Montmartre of Manhattan to others, but to me that night-blooming thoroughfare is a magnetized, magnified version of any tiny town's Main street. People come to it and things happen to them; good, bad, little and big things.

I've watched more than 5,000 dawns come up on our block—a block symbolically bounded on one side by the fashionable splendor of Fifth avenue and on the other by Sixth avenue with its delicatessens and pawn-shops. At times the street has seemed young and gay—sunny at midnight, brightened with the lovely noise of laughter and music. It has known, too, moments of seeming old and cold and not caring—a double-cross, harsh words, disillusionment, weariness.

Watching life's sweet mystery make history at night has taught this amateur philosopher that betting on tomorrow is more reckless than betting on a long shot. There is no dependable formula for fashioning or foretelling the future of the stranger who casually brushes by you on the ringside or the friend you know better than anyone in the world.

I always referred to him as "my invincible right arm." He had come up from Texas with a love for symphony and good books; he had quiet good manners and a way of looking at you, honestly and openly, as though he was studying what you were and would have you figured out before he turned his gaze elsewhere. It couldn't have been exactly what he dreamed of doing, but the pay was good, we hit it off well togther and so he became my pianist.

For eight years he sat at the miniature piano to my right. I never do two performances alike, and because I cannot gauge an audience's taste until I sense their reaction to the first few songs I never map a repertoire before-hand. But Addison Bailey got so he could tell what number I was going to do next just by a gesture or a word; he never guessed wrong.

Then our country went to war, and Addison enlisted in the air corps.

Several months ago the newsprints of the nation carried a story about a dinner party that had been given somewhere in China for Major Chennault. It contained a dramatic account of the calm courage shown by Lieutenant Addison Bailey, who was entertaining at the piano during the party when an air raid occurred. The excitement and anxiety that greeted the sudden earth-shaking tumult were tremendous, but Lieut. Bailey's fingers never faltered as they continued to caper over the keys.

Several nights ago a reporter lately returned from abroad dropped into our place. He had been among the correspondents covering the Chennault story.

"You know," he said, "some of us asked Bailey, after the air raid, how he could concentrate on his music and go on playing so nonchalantly in the midst of all that. He had an answer for us, all right. . . .

"Nothing bothers me—noise doesn't distract me," he explained. "After all, I worked for eight years in Leon & Eddie's!"

Sport Podge by REX HESS

A year ago Tommy Bender gave up a good coaching post at Logan, Ohio, to come to Shelby.

The material at Logan was good, and Tommy had been turning out good records in football and basketball.

He came to Shelby because, (he told me later) he thought Shelby still had the kind of football teams it used to have when it was a power in North Central Ohio league football. Certainly he didn't come merely for the salary which the job then paid.

Imagine Bender's surprise when he saw the squad of little kids who reported for practice for the Whippets. He was very much disappointed, but he started building for the future and had things well on the way to recovery.

Bender's move last week from Shelby to Fostoria came so quickly I doubt if he had time to look into the situation at Fostoria from the material standpoint.

Tommy is due to be surprised again, but pleasantly.

All of which may put Tommy on a spot, but Bender is the type that would rather be on the spot with a good team than a green one. Most coaches are that way.

Fostoria has a young, but veteran squad this season. Its co-championship team last fall had only one player 17 years old. Most of the squad is back, and there's no danger of the draft stepping in to deplete it.

The story back of Tiffin Junior Order's suspension of football for the duration is of interest here in Mansfield because it means that the Juniors very likely won't be around for the district basketball tournament next winter.

The story? Junior Home officials don't expect to have more than 20 boys in high school this year. And it takes an enrollment of 150 boys for a school to rate Class A.

Last time Mansfield met Junior Order in the tournament was in 1938. Score: Mansfield 44, Junior Order 18.

Only 20 boys at Tiffin Junior? Blame the war for that. Wartime prosperity. The kids can stay home and earn their keep now.

Big 10 Still Has Football

700 Players Turn Out For Summer Practice.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO—(AP)—Football may be in the hands of pallbearers in some parts of the country for the duration, but in the western conference, where 700 players have reported for summer practices, the coffin corner still is a gridiron term.

Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner of athletics, said he was delighted with the general picture, declaring the game's health was being watched by the best doctors in the world—"the American public, who insists it continue; school officials, who are supporting it more than ever because of its training values; and military leaders, who are chorusing 'send us more of those football players'."

Major Griffith refuses to become alarmed over reports that 189 colleges in the nation have abandoned football for the duration and he estimates that more than 80 per cent of the colleges which competed in 1941 will have teams operating this fall.

* * *

Enrollment of service men with gridiron experience has made this possible. Few of the stars escaped from the western conference and will be competing for teams which only a year ago they were playing against.

Purdue had 161 candidates in summer drills, Michigan had 125, Ohio State, the 1942 champion, had only 38 and Illinois 30.

Tries for Two-Mile Record

Haegg Bent on Setting One New Mark In U. S.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — Gunder Haegg, the champion Swedish distance runner who will attempt to break his own two mile record here tomorrow night, will receive a warm welcome from fellow firefighters when he arrives tonight.

The Cincinnati Firefighters association (AFL) which is sponsoring the race at Withrow high school stadium for the Army Air Forces' Aid society will be on hand to greet the Swedish champion and firefighter in his homeland.

Haegg originally was scheduled to arrive here this morning, but he delayed departing from Jamestown, N. Y., where he had been visiting.

Haegg, winner of five straight races in his American tour, will find the same duo opposing him in the race tomorrow night as last Saturday—Bill Hulse of New York and Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student and former Ashland, O., star. A third opponent was expected to be young Bob Berger of Bay Village, O.

* * *

Sponsors of the meet had hoped that Haegg would agree to run a mile race, but the Swedish star held out for the longer distance in hope of cracking his own 8:47.8 record.

The sponsors said they had received word from A.A.U. Secretary Dan Ferris at New York that Haegg hoped to set a world's record before he leaves the United States.

"He feels that of all the six world records he holds, his two-mile mark should be the easiest to lower," Ferris reported.

Hulse, who ran the mile in 4:06 in placing second to Haegg at Berea, O., last Saturday, never has run the two-mile distance.

Both Dodds and Hulse will be given the advantage of distance handicaps so that Haegg will be the only one running the full two miles. It was expected that young Berger also would receive a handicap.

It was not determined what margin would be granted Haegg's opponents.

Gets Another Crack at Jug

But Important Money Won't Be Up This Time.

By WATSON SPOELSTRA

DETROIT—(AP)—The important prize money won't be up this time, but O'Neill (Buck) White, a little known golf pro from Greenwood, Miss., will get another chance Sunday to vanquish Harold (Jug) McSpaden, recent winner of the rich Chicago Tam O'Shanter meet.

In pairings announced today White was named as McSpaden's opponent in 36-hole match play competition of the war-orphaned Ryder Cup series at Jimmy Demaret's Plum Hollow course, where some $30,000 is expected to be raised for the American Red Cross. Four team matches are scheduled tomorrow.

A fortnight ago the 32-year-old White lost an 18-hole playoff by one shot to McSpaden, smooth stroking Philadelphian, for the Chicago title, but this time over the longer distance he'll have his chance at hand-to-hand match play.

Other singles matches: Craig Wood, Ryder captain, vs Coast Guardsman Jimmy Thompson; Gene Sarazen (cup) vs Navy Lieut. Lawson Little; Demaret (cup) vs. Melvin (Chick) Harbert, of Battle Creek, Mich.; Byron Nelson, Toledo (cup) vs. Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y.; Sgt. Vic Ghezzi, Fort Monmouth, N. J. (cup) vs. Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Minneapolis; Lloyd Mangrum, Los Angeles (cup) vs. Sammy Byrd, Ardmore, Pa.; Al Watrous, Detroit (cup) vs. Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va.

Brewers Increase Association Lead

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee, romping over Toledo 11 to 1, gained a 6½ game lead in the American Association last night as the cellar-dwelling Kansas City Blues helped out by running their winning streak to eight straight with a double victory over second-place Columbus. The Blues beat down the Redbirds, 4-3 and 5-4.

Indianapolis continued in the doldrums, losing its 10th consecutive game as Ewald Pyle pitched a four-hitter for a 4-2 Minneapolis decision.

Mel Deutsch collected his fifth win in a row by pitching Louisville to a 6-1 victory over St. Paul.

Heving Saved for Relief Duty by Cleveland Indians

By BILLY BAILEY

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The status of Joe Heving, the "forgotten man" of the Cleveland Indians, was cleared up today by Manager Lou Boudreau.

"Joe is at his best as a relief pitcher," Lou said. "He has saved us many games, and we'll use him again when the opportunity presents itself."

* * *

Heving, who won five and lost three for the Tribe last season, has pitched only 40⅔ innings so far this year, mostly in relief roles. His record shows one loss and no victories.

"I don't plan on using Joe to start any games for the remainder of the season," Lou said, "But I'm counting on him to pull us through some of the close ones."

The 37-year-old veteran righthander from Covington, Ky., had pitched 35 innings up to the beginning of last month. His only start was against the New York Yankees on May 5 when he yielded six hits in 4⅔ innings.

Joe has never been used against St. Louis or Chicago this season because Boudreau thinks those two clubs are too fast on the bases for a slow pitcher like Heving.

Early in July Heving was injured in an automobile accident and he did not see service between July 1 and July 28 while he was on the mend. He suffered a bad head injury in the mishap.

Heving, whose specialty is a "sinker," first came to the Indians in 1937 from Milwaukee and served nearly two seasons before being sent back to the Millers and then sold to the Boston Red Sox.

He returned to the Indians in 1941 after two seasons with the Red Sox. His record with the Indians has been 27 victories against 11 defeats.

The big righthander's major league career has been a series of ups and downs since he came up from Memphis with the Giants in 1930. He pitched two seasons for the New Yorkers, winning eight and losing 11.

Late in the 1931 season he was released by the Giants to Rochester where he lost two and won none. The next year he hurled for Indianapolis, winning 15 and dropping nine.

The Chicago White Sox obtained Heving in 1932 and used him for two seasons before releasing him to Louisville. Joe didn't take part in any games for the colonels and the following year returned to Cleveland.

* * *

His Major league record shows 66 victories against 44 losses, with his best year being with the Red Sox in 1939 when he won 11 and lost only three.

Indians Open Home Stand

Tribe Plays 25 Games Before Taking To Road.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians open a 25-game home stand tonight with the club which has beaten them more times this season than any other American league opponent—the seventh place St. Louis Browns.

* * *

Luke Sewell's Brownies have won nine of 15 encounters with the Tribe this year, and tonight's pitching foe will be the ace jinx of them all—Knuckleballer Johnny Niggeling. The six-foot veteran whipped the Indians four times last season with no casualties to his own record and has won and lost one this year.

* * *

Allie Reynolds, Manager Lou Boudreau's choice for tonight's mound chores, will be out for his fifth victory against six defeats.

Now in fifth place, the Indians are just three and a half games out of second place, 11½ back of the pace setting New York Yankees.

HIGH ALTITUDE

CHICAGO — (AP) — Looking up startled and astonished everybody sees the Cincinnati Reds donning their oxygen masks and trying to maintain flight in the rare altitudes of third place in the National league.

* * *

They got there, a single point ahead of the somewhat stumbing Brooklyn Dodgers, by virtue of Bucky Walters' 101st victory as a Red. He whittled down the Chicago Cubs with a six-hitter yesterday, 4 to 1, while his team was gathering ten hits off a couple of Cub pitchers.

* * *

Bucky started slowly, allowing the Cubs their run after two out in the first inning on Phil Cavarretta's double and Bill Nicholson's single. From there in the Cubs could do nothing while the Reds went ahead to win.

Ray Starr for the Reds and Eddie Hanyzewski for the Cubs are today's pitchers.

Henry Favored Over Garrison

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U.P.)—Henry Armstrong, former ruler of three boxing divisions, ruled a slight favorite over Jimmy Garrison for their 10-round bout tonight.

* * *

Since he belted out former lightweight champion Lew Jenkins in eight rounds last December, Armstrong has dropped a close fight to Beau Jack, broken even in two fights with Willie Joyce and beaten Sammy Angott. All told, he has registered 71 knockouts in 94 fights.

* * *

Garrison has compiled a record of 29 kayoes in 66 professiontl starts. He will weigh about 146, slightly more than Hammering Hank.

MOUNTS POSTPONE FOOTBALL DECISION

ALLIANCE —(INS)— Mt. Union college announced today it would not make a decision on intercollegiate athletics until the fall enrollment has been completed, affording a definite line on available man power.

College officials expressed hope the school would be able to have a varsity football team this year. However, U. S. Army Air Corps cadets, stationed on the campus, will not be available because of the war department ban on soldier-student intercollegiate athletic participation.

Springfield Wins Legion Crown

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The 1943 Ohio American Legion Junior Baseball championship rested with Springfield today following its 5 to 2 victory over the highly-touted Cleveland club in yesterday's finals.

* * *

It was the lake citians' second defeat by the surprising Springfield nine. In an earlier round the new champions drubbed the Clevelanders 2 to 0. Other Springfield tourney victims were Steubenville and Zanesville.

Cincinnati, 1942 champion, handed the 1943 titlist its own loss, a 2 to 0 defeat in the Monday opener.

Camilli Gives Up Baseball

Glad His Worries as Dodger Are Finished.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— Dolph Camilli is completely happy for the first time this baseball season—ironically happy because his baseball career is over, he has shaken himself free and in a few days will be headed with his fine family back to his California ranch. He is happy at a time when other men might weep. There will be no hanging to the loose outer fringes of the game for Camilli, and no coming back, so he says, as coach or manager.

* * *

In declining to join the Giants Camilli explained at great length exactly where he stood. He wasn't passing them up merely because they are in the cellar.

He sincerely figures he is through. He can't get his bat round as he used to and many a ball that he would have pulled over the fence when he was at his best has turned into an unpretentious little slice into left field this season. He is hitting below .250 — or was when the Dodgers dealt him off to the Giants last week. He lacks his old power. He isn't in the best of shape physically and hasn't been for two seasons. His ranch needs his care and his family wants him there at home.

As he explained to President Horace Stoneham and Manager Mel Ott of the Giants yesterday, he has probably more friends among the Giants than with any other club, excepting Brooklyn and that is saying a lot because he is universally popular. But he knows he can't help the Giants any more than he could help the Dodgers.

Against all the reasons for his quitting baseball there could have been only one to make him stay —the $7,000 that he would have received for the rest of the season.

Having weighed it all, he decided finally that the decision he had made—and had permitted President Branch Rickey of the Dodgers to change—before the season opened was the right one in the first place. Get out of baseball.

Rickey finally got him to sign but reportedly only for a $22,000 contract plus a summer home on Long Island for his family and transportation for them all from the coast.

When he told Stoneham and Ott finally and definitely yesterday that he was through he ended all by himself one of the outstanding careers of the last decade. He went to the heights with the Dodgers in 1941, all the way to the pennant after being brought in by Larry McPhail from the Phillies.

Because of his all-around skill as a first baseman and his slugging through those bitter months when the Dodgers were beating back the rest of the National league he was chosen as the most valuable player in the league.

He was a fancy-salaried, popular man with a top-flight club and a seemingly indestructible, powerful player who was expected to shine for a time yet even at the age of 35. There weren't many men of his worth around when this season opened.

However, he fell off considerably last season. His batting average dropped from .285 in 1941 to .252. His home runs shrunk from 34 to 26 and his runs batted in from 120 to 109. But he still was a fine ball player—still among the best at first base and at the plate.

Then this season he never did hit his stride. The more he worried and fretted the worse he was, and he probably would have asked to be benched had he stayed with the Dodgers to finish out the season. When they sent him to the Giants he simply could see no point in going on this way.

* * *

And that about covers the story about the finish of an all-time hero in Brooklyn. They won't forget him soon—forget the way he murdered the pitchers down that stretch in 1941 when he and Durocher and Wyatt and the rest charged home to the pennant.

At 35 he is financially able to do exactly what he wants to do —live on his ranch that he sweated and fought through 10 major league seasons to buy.

In leaving us all he said:

"I was worried and unhappy with the Dodgers. I know I couldn't do the Giants any good. Now I will worry no more. California, here I come."

Doubles championship of the Woodlawn tennis club will be decided this evening at 5:30 on the Woodlawn courts when Bourns and Slabaugh defend their title against Bob Enos and Frank Gadfield.

Westies Gain Sweet Revenge

Swamp Kid All-Stars In Return Engagement.

Westinghouse softballers went after the Kid All-Stars with blood in their eye last evening, and wound up with a 25-3 victory for their record, avenging an earlier humiliation at the hands of the kids.

Westies believe the kids were over-confident, especially after they scored three runs in the first inning. That was the end of their scoring, and Westies came back with four in their half of the initial frame and sewed up the game with eight in the second.

Schaeffer was the hitting star with two home runs and a triple in five trips to the platter. Gibson and Bader hit homers for the kids in that first stanza.

Fielding star was Kenny Lockhart at third for Westies, while Stub Winebrenner fanned 12, and allowed only three hits.

Redlegs Hit Hot Streak

Rhinelanders May Yet Threaten Loop Leaders.

By TED MEIER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Cincinnati Reds, who have been blowing hot and cold all season, apparently are generating a full head of steam that may blow Pittsburgh out of second place in the National league and possibly prove very annoying to the first place St. Louis Cardinals.

Behind a masterful six-hit pitching performance by Bucky Walters, the Reds yesterday beat the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 1, and dropped the crumbling Brooklyn Dodgers from third to fourth. The Reds took over the third place position, only 2½ games behind the second place Pirates. In this spot they can profit regardless how the Pirates-Cards series, opening tonight in St. Louis, turns out. If the Cards win, the Reds gain on the Pirates. If Pittsburgh wins, the Reds take a step closer to first place.

With all other major league clubs idle, the rise of the Rhinelanders shared interest with Dolph Camilli's announcement that he had quit baseball. The former Brooklyn first baseman —traded to the New York Giants last Saturday—said he was "washed up," thus voluntarily ending an 11-year career in the majors with the Cubs, Phillies and Dodgers.

It may be only a coincidence, but the return to form of Walters seems to have inspired the Reds. They have won four of their last five starts and Bucky, the third baseman turned pitcher, has won two of them. If Johnny Vander Meer begins to win regularly, along with Elmer Riddle, Ray Starr and Walters the Reds will be very formidable. They already boast a snappy double play combination in Shortstop Eddie Miller and Second Baseman Lonnie Frey and are getting some timely hitting, especially from Eric Tipton and Ray Mueller.

Swedes Pleased As King Bans Nazi Traffic In Nation

AVERAGE MAN NEVER LIKED TRANSIT DEAL

Berlin Threatens No Reprisal But Germans Now Must Use Perilous Sea Route.

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM — The Swedish public demonstrated pleasure today at the decision by the government of King Gustaf V to bar Sweden's transit facilities to German troops and war materiel.

The average Swede never approved of the Nazi transit traffic between Germany and Norway and Finland through Sweden. It was accepted by the government as an expedient measure when war threatened the unprepared nation in 1940.

Now the Swedes are better prepared militaristically than at any time in their history, with a well-equipped and superbly trained army of 400,000 men and coastal and other defenses on 24-hour alert for any eventuality.

No reprisals have been indicated or threatened by the Nazis for the decision, announced yesterday, to stop the transport of German war materiel across Sweden Aug. 15 and to halt the movement of troops Aug. 20.

For Sweden, the drastic step lifted a heavy burden from her neutrality policy; for Germany it will force further use of the perilous North sea route to Norway and it also added materially to the problem of supplying Nazi troops in Finland.

New encouragement was provided the loyal population of Norway, who have already reported the morale of the German occupational forces ebbing dangerously.

The growing possibility of an Allied invasion of Norway and the U. S. Flying Fortress raids upon German objectives there July 24 brought to a head Swedish public demands that the traffic be ended.

The newspaper Dagens Nyheter, commenting editorially on the transit stoppage, said the people had been waiting "impatiently" a long time for the announcement and "seldom has a government message been received with greater satisfaction and delight by the whole nation."

"If the step has given Germany a clearer picture of what we think about conditions in Norday," it said, "that will be a great help."

Hall Calls Swedish Move Significant

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State Hull expressed gratification today that Sweden is ranceling facilities given Germany ince 1940 for the movement of roops and war materials through Swedish territory to Norway and Finland.

The fact that Sweden felt able o take such action at this time vas in itself significant, he told press conference.

Hull indicated that United States-British recognition of the French committee of National Liberation might be imminent.

Berlin Reports No Tension'

(By Associated Press)

A German foreign office spokesman was quoted by the Berlin radio today as saying that the cessation of Nazi military traffic hrough Sweden resulted from an greement between the two governments and that no tension existed between Berlin and Stockolm.

The broadcast was recorded by he Associated Press.

'Cigs for Yanks' Campaign Raises Fund of $2,300

Mansfield's "smokes for the Yanks" drive netted $2,300, according to an official report issued today by the American Legion auxiliary.

The original goal was $2,500 or enough to buy $1,000,000 cigarets for our fighting men overseas. The cigarets were purchased by special arrangement with the tobacco company for five cents a pack.

Highlight of the drive which lasted from June 7 to July 7 was the benefit show at the Ohio theater on June 30. A profit of $500 was realized on the show for which everything, including the theater, stagehands' and musicians' time, was donated.

In the 80 jars placed in various business places over the city $1,800 were donated by Mansfielders. Numerous donations were made directly to the auxiliary by local organizations and individuals and these figured in the jar collection total.

Mrs. J. Harvey Dickson, auxiliary president, headed the drive and was assisted by Mrs. Pearl Leuthner with the Mansfield News-Journal co-operating.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

One of the new books for older boys to be released Saturday at the Mansfield Public library tells of a messenger to the Indians when war was in the air who had many narrow escapes. The other book is a true story of a scout who stood watch over the Ohio valley a few years later.

WAR BELTS OF PONTIAC, by William H. Bunce — Lew Hardin and his Indian friend, Running Otter, were chosen to deliver white peace belts to the warring chiefs beween Fort Pitt and Detroit. They were captured and recaptured by tribes anxious to declare war on the tribes which were not part of Pontiac's band. Pontiac was the most powerful chief in the region and Lew Hardin was well rewarded for his attempts to make peace with him.

SIMON KENTON, KENTUCKY SCOUT, by Thomas D. Clark — The name of Simon Kenton is linked with those of Boone and Clark among the most important of the indispensable pioneers. He kept watch of the Kentucky borderland for many years and warned the pioneers of approaching enemies. He was one of the greatest of the early woodsmen, for his understanding of the ways of the wilderness, and Daniel Boone owed his life to Kenton's skill.

B'NAI B'RITH CHAPTER RAISES $1,200 FUND FOR MOBILE UNIT

Less than three months from the day they launched their drive for funds to purchase a mobile unit for the Red Cross overseas the Mansfield chapter of B'nai B'rith has reached its $1,200 goal.

This is the amount needed to purchase a staff car used by Red Cross field directors in services to the fighting men on the far-flung battle fronts.

According to H. A. Jacobson, chairman of the organization's war service committee, and Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, chairman of the women's committee, 100 per cent participation by the 50 or 60 active members put the drive over the finish line.

Plans are now under way for a formal presentation of the staff car to a representative of the nation Red Cross organiation. The presentation will be held either Aug. 19 or 20 and a car exactly like the one purchased by the B'nai B'rith will be on hand, Jacobson said.

The national Red Cross has notified the local organization that the staff car will be used in Hickham Field, Pearl Harbor or Honolulu and when it reaches its destination will carry an inscription identifying it with the Mansfield B'nai B'rith.

Jacobson said that the completion of this project did not mean that the organiation's war service committee will cease working. Instead, it will now devote its attention to providing soldiers at Camp Millard at Bucyrus with recreation activities not already provided by the Red Cross and USO, he said.

CHARGES BUNGLING CAUSED LOSS OF 37 CARLOADS OF POTATOES

(By International News Service)

VINCENNES, Ind.—Gerald W. Landis, congressman from the seventh Indiana district, today pressed his one-man investigation of the dumping of 37 carloads of potatoes here after telegraphing Marvin Jones, war food administrator, and demanding that he order an inquiry into the disposal of the vegetables, most of which were said to have rotted.

Landis said that interviews with various people here did not result in disclosing what government agency was responsible for the food waste. The congressman, who is chairman of the fresh fruits and vegetables subcommittee of the Republican congressional food study committee, asserted:

"We lost more potatoes in this deal than all of the victory gardeners in Knox county can raise. It is estimated that the total loss was in excess of 1,332,000 pounds and had a market price of $50,000."

Landis said he was told that the shipment came to Vincennes from St. Louis, where the cars had set on a railroad siding for several days prior to shipment. He charged that the wastage of the potatoes, government-owned, was "just another example of New Deal bungling."

Meanwhile Otto Schlomer, owner of the dump, devealed that he had been sorting the potatoes, dumped by army trucks from George field after being transported from the Ebner Ice and Cold Storage company of Vincennes. Schlomer told Landis that he was selling the potatoes for $1 per bushel or permitting persons to pick potatoes off the dump for 25c per bushel. He told the congressman that he had found about 50 per cent of the potatoes edible.

DIES FOLLOWING SHORT ILLNESS

Infant Son Of Mr. and Mrs. Morehead Taken By Death.

Arthur L. Morehead, 3-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Morehead, Mansfield R. D. 1, died this morning after several days' illness. He was born May 17, 1943.

Surviving are his parents, two brothers, Elmer and Gerald; two sisters, Evelyn and Barbara Ann, and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Au, Lexington R. D., and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Banks of Tiro.

The body is at the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. in charge of Rev. James L. Boyer, pastor of the First United Brethren church. Burial will be in the Dickson cemetery near Tiro.

FALL OF ITALY WOULD POINT GUNS AT NAZIS

Cracking of Axis Will Offer Allies Many New Chances To Hit Heart of Germany.

(By United Press)

Cracking of the Italian segment of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis would open wide and varied possibilities for the Allies to strike at the heart of Germany.

From the Lombardy plains in northern Italy, the Allies would be in their most favorable strategic position of the war for striking a knockout blow by land or air at Adolf Hitler's European fortress.

Military experts have pointed out that every German war factory would be within easy range of American and British bombers if the Allies could establish airdromes in northern Italy. From air fields at Milan and other Italian cities they could smash industries in southern and eastern Germany and some occupied territories that have been entirely or comparatively undamaged.

Italy is not such a favorable base for land assault. However. The French, Austrian and Italian Alps form a mountainous barrier that would be extremely difficult for an army to cross. A less formidable alternative route would be across the Italian-Jugoslavian frontier.

Germany could be expected to concentrate a large army at the Brenner Pass crossing from Italy into Austria. The rugged Italian-German frontier would appear easy to defend, but Allied troops got valuable experience in mountain fighting in both Tunisia and Sicily.

Corsica, which almost inevitably would fall into Allied hands with occupation of Sardinia, could be used as a base for amphibious operations into France

Another tremendous advantage to Allied occupation of Italy would be domination of the entire Balkan area. The Balkans would be caught in a huge pincers by land and sea, with Allied forces in position to invade from Italy on the west and the Near East on the south

The problem of supply would become a precarious one for the Axis.

It is not beyond the realm of possibility that once the Allies had pointed this threat cannon at Germany from the south, the Allied high command might decide that the time was ripe to open a third front in western or northern Europe.

Dominica was called Sunday island by Columbus because he sighted it on that day in 1493.

ORDINANCE NO. 43-116

By Mr. Kyle

Amending Section 66 (1) of Ordinance No. 883 as amended by Ordinance 41-240 and providing that no truck or heavy motor vehicle shall drive over sidewalks in any event without first proper planking to carry weight.

Be it Ordained by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio:

Section 1 That Section 66 (1) of Ordinance No 883 as amended by Ordinance 41-240 shall be amended to read as follows.

"Section 66: No person shall stand or park a vehicle except when necessary to avoid conflict with other traffic or in compliance with the directions of a police officer or a traffic control device in the following manner.

(1) On a sidewalk provided that when such necessity exists or when operation of said truck or heavy vehicle is properly had across sidewalk the same shall be first properly planked to carry weight.

Section 2: That this ordinance be in full force and effect from and after the earliest period allowable by law.

Passed July 13, 1943.

MIXED PRICES RESULT FROM LISTLESS MART

Money Circulation Climbs To $215,000,000 During Week Ended Aug. 4.

NEW YORK—Prices were mixed in a narrow range in the stock market today in a continuation of Thursday's listless dealings.

A shade lower at the slow opening were American Telephone, General Motors, Montgomery Ward and New York Central. Support was accorded U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Commonwealth Edison and Paramount pictures.

Another sharp increase in money in circulation was shown in banking statistics, the total rising $215,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday or more than twice as much as in the preceding fortnight. Some economists consider currency outstanding a factor in the battle against inflation.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Wheat advanced on mill buying at the opening today while oats and rye held steady. Strength in wheat at Winnipeg, where gains ranging to a cent were posted, had a favorable influence on the local market.

Wheat started ⅛ to ½ higher, September $1.44⅞. December $1.46¼-½, and rye was unchanged to ¼ lower, September $1.02½.

YANKS ROLLING AHEAD TOWARD MESSINA PORT

Aerial Tornado Lashes Last Axis Escape Hatch In Northeast Sicily.

lateral roads still in enemy hands

The Flying Fortress assault upon Messina marked the first time in many weeks that the Allies' heaviest air weapon has been used against that badly-battered Sicilian target.

Wellingtons blasted the beaches near Messina and a follow-up raid during the night, to disrupt German supply efforts and the evacuation of non-essential personnel reported underway for about a week

Swarms of medium bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters continued to fill the sky over the dwindling enemy bridgehead, roving unopposed over roads and railroads, hurling steel into troop convoys and blasting the towns of Adrano, Francavilla and other key points of the German defense system.

A communique from General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said road and railway communications in Messina, the key to the dwindling Axis bridgehead in Sicily and only a 35-minute ferry ride from the Italian mainland at San Giovanni, was attacked by the heavy bombers with fighter escort.

"Medium bombers attacked road communications at Francavilla (north of Mt Etna and 28 miles southwest of Messina) while light bombers attacked similar targets at Adrano (imperilled enemy base on the Mt Etna road 15 miles northwest of fallen Catania)," the communique said

Fighter-bombers carried out repeated attacks on masses of enemy troops and cross roads areas, it was announced

"Electrical installations on Sardinia were attacked during the day," the communique said. "Intruder aircraft operated over southern Italy during the night of Aug 4-5

"Last night our bombers attacked enemy troops and shipping in the neighborhood of Messina.

"From all these operations eight of our aircraft are missing"

(The broadcast Italian communique belatedly admitted the evacuation of Catania which the Allies announced yesterday had been captured (Axis forces continued to engage in "tenacious defensive fighting" in Sicily, the announcement said.

(The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, said Italian assault naval units escorted by a submarine penetrated Gibraltar harbor Wednesday night and sank a tanker and two merchant ships. The same submarine had entered the harbor on the night of May 7-8, when two British steamers totaling 17,500 tons and an American vessel of 7,500 tons were sunk by naval assault units, the broadcast said. All these claims were without Allied confirmation.

(A dispatch to Madrid from La Linea Spain however, said observers there yesterday morning reported that two freighters and one tanker were damaged, not sunk.)

Messina Beaches Hammered Steadily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — (INS) — American Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lightning fighters, and night flying British Wellington bombers, today are engaged in concerted day and night attacks against Axis attempts to escape from Sicily by way of the Messina bridgehead.

Aircraft crews report that beaches around Messina are clogged with light craft attempting to remove the hapless German and Italian troops and offer the principal target for bombs and machine-gun fire.

Docks and the industrial area of Messina have been especially hard hit by the heavy fortresses, crews of which reported that they failed to encounter enemy fighters. Anti-aircraft fire was described as moderate.

2 Million Overseas Rayburn Reveals

COMMERCE, Texas — (AP) — Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) today said the U. S. army had 2,000,000 men overseas and the navy would be twice as strong at the end of this year as it was at the close of 1942.

Rayburn spoke at East Texas Teachers college where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

He cited what he called eight accomplished strides toward victory, in answer to home-front critics whom he described as "our saboteurs of the spirit, the grumlins."

(Rayburn said he compounded gremlin and grumbler to get "grumlin.")

"We must and we will win this war," he declared, "but we must do a man's part in the world's great work of peace."

Rayburn's list of the nation's accomplishments toward victory.

Two million men—largest overseas force in history—sent to foreign soil;

Addition of 200 warships to navy since January 1;

Increase in army and navy air forces by more than 64,000 planes in past year;

Victory over the U-boat.

Adequate transportation of men and materials and an air umbrella to protect them.

Greatest food supply ever amassed by any nation.

Establishment of price controls.

Fitness of our fighting men surpassing those of all other nations."

WAC Recruit Drive Launched In Four County Villages

County civilian defense workers in Bellville, Lexington, Lucas and Butler today began their house-to-house canvass to find all women eligible for the WAC

WACs stationed at the courthouse here are following the same plan of recruiting in the county villages as they have been using the past two weeks in Mansfield.

Village block leaders were supplied yesterday with packets of literature and questionnaires and were given their instructions by Lieut. Elizabeth Bylesby and James Eberly, county war service chief.

The canvass will be completed this week and the questionnaires turned over to the WACs Monday so the material may be included with the results of the city recruiting drive

WAC officials said today the Mansfield drive was nearly completed with several women signed for the service though none have had their final physical examination or been sworn in Plans Festival—The Jugs Corners grange will sponsor an ice cream festival Saturday evening at the grange hall, Steam Corners-Lexington road. Proceeds are to be used for church purposes.

Signs Waiver—Robert C. Gerred, Lorain, arrested last night on U. S. Route 42 on a charge of driving an automobile without an operator's permit forfeited bond of $16.30 in municipal court today.

Train Rider Fined — William Dickson, colored, Cincinnati, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal train riding. Dickson was arrested last night by Detective E. A. Lonmatzsch of the Erie railroad.

Registration Ends — Registrations for the last camp period at Camp Nelson Dodd, Y.M.C.A. camp, must be in by 8:30 p. m. Saturday, Louis T. Jisa, chairman of the camp committee, announced today. There are openings for 10 more boys, he said.

Car Damaged—A blaze which firemen said started from a cigaret in the upholstering caused minor damage to a parked car at West First street and Blymyer avenue at 12:30 a. m. today. Firemen from Central station put out the blaze. Owner of the car was not located.

Pick-Pocket Victim — Thomas Thrush, Plymouth, told police yesterday that his billfold containing $20 was stolen as he was leaving an Erie train at the Union station. Police were given the descriptions of two suspects who left the train in Mansfield and walked south on Diamond street from the depot.

Search For Wallet—Arriving at the Greyhound bus terminal shortly before 1 a. m. today from Cleveland, a Cleveland man reported his pocket had been picked on the bus Police checked the passengers and searched the bus without finding the man's wallet. The Clevelander then decided he must have lost it before boarding the bus at home.

Synthetic Meat Made From Yeast, Air and Molasses

ST. LOUIS — (INS) — Synthetic meat, made from yeast, water, molasses and costing about one-fifth the price of natural beefsteak, is in production at Anheuser-Busch, Inc., in St. Louis, it was learned today.

The product, it was said, will fool all but the most critical palates. Developed by Dr. Carl C. Lindegren of Washington university, the process works this way:

One hundred and twenty-five pounds of yeast is planted in a 1,000 cubic foot vat containing 7,000 gallons of water, a ton and a half of molasses to feed the yeast and ammonia to convert the yeast into protein. Then, 1,000 cubic feet of air a minute is stirred into the mixture and 12 hours later the "meat" is ready—a full ton of it.

Thousands of pounds of the "meat" already have been purchased by the army and navy and lend-lease agencies. The "meat" is only one of a number of new products of research being turned out at Anheuser-Busch—a brewing company — and test meals complete with two kinds of soup, meat loaf, muffins, cheese sticks and pie have been served in demonstrations at the plant—all the courses made from yeast.

CHAPTER XIX

Meegan was sitting in Fayne's living room looking at words in a book that ordinarily would have made extremely good sense to her and which now made none when the door opened and Fayne, wearing a blue suit, came in and placed a brown Gladstone by the door.

There was amusement in his voice when he said, "There's a storm coming. Didn't you see?"

She sat up with a start. "No, I didn't notice."

He walked to the window and said, "The boy's got it! He can ride alone!" And he lowered the window and drew the curtains, shutting out the window on which the rain had just begun to peck.

"Of course we could have a cocktail while we wait." He came back and stood over her. "Is it coincidental that it rains when I'd very much like a cocktail just now?"

"I'll help you."

"No. Stay where you are. The truth is that the kitchen isn't big enough for two."

When he came back he placed the tray with the cocktails on a coffee table before her and then drew up another of the deep chairs close to the table.

"I have few guests here, Meegan. Consequently I have nothing else to offer you."

"I don't want anything else. This is . . . very pleasant."

He sat back with the glass in his hand and obviously he was listening to the rain. He smiled, the quick flash of a spontaneous smile before he said, "This is the first time I've ever wanted to drink a toast to coincidence . . . But I should think coincidence personified is a someone with a sense of humor, a slightly malicious sense of humor . . ." He did not speak at once. Then he said, his voice lower, "It's difficult to be impersonal in a setting like this . . . and with a girl like you. But if I could be, I'd like to tell you what a lovely person I think you are . . . and how pleasant and stimulating it is to be with you. Pleasant is rather a negative word. You are certainly not negative. When you are with some persons, the clock stops. You are one of those persons."

"Thank you. Do you . . . do you think the storm will last long?"

"All right." He smiled at her. "But we can't talk about the weather, you know. It's too obvious. Let's talk about you."

"I'll probably sound coy when I say there isn't anything to tell about me. Heaven forbid I should ever be coy."

"You couldn't be. Do you remember the first time you tried to ride a bike?"

"Perfectly. Suddenly you had to remember several things at once . . . steering and pedalling and looking out for others. What sort of little boy were you?"

He chuckled again. "Opinions differ on that score. I thought I was a fine little chap with some splendid ideas but there were some who thought me wilful. You see, I don't remember my mother. When you haven't a mother, you invariably feel that home is just a place where you're stopping . . . which probably accounts for my wanderlust. A boy's mother is the first woman in his life, the first woman he loves. If he doesn't remember her, then he begins with several strikes against him in his understanding of women."

"And then?"

He smiled. "All right. Schools here and abroad until I didn't know which country or language was mine. I was a fortunate lad in many ways. I was on my own most of the time and there was no one to spoil me."

"No one?"

"No one. My father was a busy man who gave educators the job of preparing his son for life. And well paid educators never complain as long as the boy is happy even if he isn't learning anything except skiing and boxing and fishing and making model airplanes. So you see I had a beautifully rounded education."

"But no home life."

"You don't miss it if you've never had it."

Meegan said, "I've often wondered why you didn't come home when the war began. I knew you had business here and there was so much to be done."

* * *

He looked away, frowning. "Clare didn't want to come back and it was unwise to coerce her. I went into government because they seemed to think I had knowledge that could be useful to them. So you see I didn't spend all my time sunning myself on the Riviera. Their aviation interested me. In fact, they began to suspect I was much too interested . . ." Looking at her again, he smiled. "And a girl I didn't know existed thought I was a slacker . . . Curious . . ."

"It isn't particularly curious when one is well known and the other obscure."

"The most curious thing of all is that you are not married . . . You don't look quite as unhappy now as you looked in the station."

"I'm not. When you saw me, I was feeling dead inside."

"The young man? What's the matter with him?"

She said, "To me the sorriest spectacle on earth is the sight of a man and woman married to each other and strangers with no thought or feeling ever in unison. That is beating yourself against a stone wall until you are senseless, until there is nothing left of the intangibles in yourself that you valued. That's why I can't marry him . . . Has the rain stopped? With the curtains drawn I can't see . . ."

"I don't want to see. I want to know about those intangibles."

"No, really. I'd rather not." She was saying too much, taking up too much time. The clock had stopped . . .

"I'm curious," he said. "And coincidence doesn't strike a second time, you know."

When she smiled, she saw that he was smiling at her, that they were smiling at each other.

She said, "Very well. All I have now are intangibles like faith and truth and courage. And I believe for what is to come our intangibles will keep us up and keep us going, not the 'things' we've set so much store by in the past. I miss some of the things, it's true. Our house used to be a house with lights on every night and people dining and the silver always polished. The times that brought the war made us poor. I'm not saying this because I want sympathy. I loathe sympathy. I'm saying it to make a point, this point: that I am more than willing to give up the things I've been used to if people who had much less than I can have a little more. There can never be an honest and lasting peace while a few have too much and a great many have too little. That sounds very grand and noble, I know. So many grand and noble things are said but never done because it's so much simpler to think them."

He did not say anything. He sat there looking at her thoughtfully. Then he got up and parted the curtains, revealing the rain drying on the windows.

* * *

Unfair as it was the comparison between Paul and Fayne nevertheless nagged at her during the drive to the island. As they approached Fayne said, "I'll stop a moment to see how Clare is and then drive you home."

"Please don't. It's no trouble. I can walk."

"Of course you are not going to walk. You don't mind if anyone knows I brought you home, do you?"

"Why no. Certainly not."

"Wait. I won't be long."

He walked across the lawn, a tall, long-legged fair man whose alert step had become as lovingly familiar in so short a while as the clear directness of his blue eyes and the deep richness of his voice. What had they said in the apartment? She must remember every word of it. No, she must remember none of it . . .

She was aware that day was fading and the long twilight coming when she saw him walking toward her again, his head lowered a little. When he reached her, he lifted his head and she could not tell by his expression whether he was worried or annoyed.

He smiled. "Do you still want to go for a swim? Why don't we go together? Have you a suit in the bath house?"

"I always keep one there."

"I have one here in the car. Clare isn't home. Miss Willoughby told me she'd been delayed in town. I don't see any reason why we shouldn't get in a swim after a hot day in town. Would you like to call your mother?"

"It isn't necessary. I didn't tell her when I'd be back."

In the bath house she changed quickly wondering why no sense of guilt cut through her happiness as a sharp saw cuts through wood. It seemed perfectly natural to be going for a swim with Fayne . . . All at once she recalled that as they drove by the club house, she had waved to people on the club house porch as she always did. Certainly it had not occurred to her to call attention to herself. She had waved because it had not occurred to her either that there was anything irregular or improper in being with Fayne.

The twilight had deepened and there was no one except Fayne on the beach when she came out.

They went in and swam. He called to her once and she lifted her hand and waved. When he saw her swimming ashore, he followed and they stood on the shore and put on their robes.

"Do you ever go in for a swim at night?" he asked.

"I used to. I haven't done it in years. We used to go in when we were forbidden to."

He smiled. "We'd better change. You're shivering."

As he drove slowly up the hill she saw that there were no lights burning in the house. The friends with whom her mother had spent the afternoon had had no difficulty in persuading her to stay to dinner.

"How is the front door?" Fayne asked.

When she turned to him quickly, he was smiling. Did he know? Had he suspected?"

"Oh, it's all right now. We didn't have any more trouble with it."

When he stopped the car, he said, "Coincidence has given us a long afternoon, Meegan."

"Yes. It's been fun."

LEAVES FROM NOTEBOOK OF A WAR REPORTER

Sicilian Woman Inquires About Her Son; An Ohio Farm Boy Proves Too Brave.

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY IN NORTHERN SICILY, July 29—(Delayed)—(AP)—Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

A tall young American naval lieutenant walked along the waterfront of a Sicilian port. His summer work uniform was wrinkled, and there was a hole in the heel of his left sock. He looked a little tired, but his face was friendly as he paused to look in a shop window. A Sicilian woman stepped up to speak to him.

She told him that she had lived in the United States but returned to Sicily leaving her son behind because he wanted to stay in America. Since then he had joined the navy. She wanted to know if the young lieutenant knew him, and whether her son's Sicilian ancestry would handicap him in the service.

"Your son is not on my vessel, and I do not know him," the lieutenant answered, "but wherever he is with the United States navy, he is being well treated."

He assured her that her son would not suffer any prejudice because his parents came from a country with which the United States was at war.

The woman turned away satisfied after thanking the lieutenant. She did not know he was Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the president.

Brave men whose courage is tempered with battle caution make the best soldiers. Veteran campaigners develop an attitude bordering on contempt for the foolhardy soldier, for often he risks other lives as well as his own needlessly and for no purpose. In war the penalty for a careless action follows promptly. That penalty may be death.

During the march on Palermo the column was held up in a deep gorge 15 miles from the city by a German 88 milimeter gun emplaced on a ridge. Around a bend in the road, a platoon of riflemen was sent to flank the gun from the surrounding hills.

Against the advice of the others, one rifleman — an Ohio farm boy —tried to shortcut the problem by worming his way down into a little ravine and approaching the gun headon.

The others worked slowly around the mountain ridges until they were in position over the gun. With a burst of fire they killed two of the 88 milimeter gun's crew and the others fled. They were quickly rounded up, however, as an American self-propelled assault gun rounded the bend and blasted the unmanned 88 millimeter piece and its ammunition with four quick shots.

In the ravine, the riflemen found the body of an Ohio farm boy. He had been easy prey for the German gun crew. One had picked him off with a bullet through the back.

"He won't plow no more," said one rifleman looking at the face of his comrade, "if he had stuck with us he wouldn't be where he is now."

MUNDA OCCUPIED BY U. S. AFTER FIERCE FIGHT

1,671 Jap Dead Counted as MacArthur Reveals End of Organized Resistance.

Meanwhile, as Allied headquarters announced that all organized Japanese resistance had ended in the bloody siege of Munda, Lieut.-Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift hinted at new Allied sea-borne operations against Japan in the southwest Pacific.

"The amphibious corps is ready for action," General Vandergrift told correspondents at an advanced South Pacific base.

General Vandergrift's hint on new Allied offensive moves in the offing came as he returned to the South Pacific war theater from the United States, where he was decorated with the Congressional Medal of Honor and promoted from major general to lieutenant general.

General Vandergrift is the man who led U. S. Marines ashore at Guadalcanal just a year ago today. Now he will command the first amphibious corps in delivering fresh blows against Japan's invasion armies.

Along with the capture of Munda, good news came from the New Guinea front where field dispatches declared the big Japanese stronghold at Salamaua was so gravely menaced that the enemy launched repeated counter-attacks against Allied troops advancing within five miles of the base.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters said the enemy attacks were heavily repulsed and Allied fighters then swept forward to dislodge the Japanese from machine-gun posts.

Meanwhile, a Chinese army spokesman declared the Japanese, fearful of new air raids on Japan, were rushing aerial reinforcements for attacks on potential Allied "bomb Tokyo" bases in China.

The spokesman said at least 80 planes had arrived at one enemy air field in Anhwei province alone and that the Japanese were hurriedly enlarging their two main air bases in Hupeh province.

Jap Warship Losses Run Two-to-One

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—(AP)—Japan has lost more than twice as many planes as the United States in the South Pacific since the beginning of the Solomons campaign one year ago.

A compilation based on official communiques showed today the extent of American superiority over the enemy in the air as well as on sea.

Figures covering the period of Aug. 8, 1942 to May 8, 1943, for the South Pacific only, placed Japanese losses as 96 warships sunk, 18 probably sunk and 129 damaged.

United States losses were 41 ships sunk and nine damaged.

Enemy aircraft destroyed totaled 1802 planes of all categories. Ours were not listed in their entirety, but a navy spokesman said American losses were less than one-fourth of the enemy's, or in the vicinity of 450 planes.

Important Moves Waited In Orient

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Important developments in the Far Eastern war zone were foreshadowed today by the arrival in India of Maj. Gen. George Stratemeyer, former chief of the air staff of the U. S. Army Air Forces on a secret new assignment. He is a native of Cincinnati, O.

When the war department on July 27 announced Stratemeyer's transfer from the post of air staff chief, it merely said he was being given an "undisclosed assignment of extreme importance."

According to dispatches from India, Stratemeyer told newsmen that he could not discuss his assignment until he conferred with Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of American forces in China, Burma and India.

HOW YOUR SON WENT TO WAR TOLD IN STORY

Article Describes Port of Embarkation and What Happens There.

(Editor's Note: This article tells "how your boy went to war" . . . a description of the New York port of embarkation, the last stop on this side of the water for America's fighting forces.)

By WALTER KIERNAN
(INS Staff Writer)

NEW YORK PORT OF EMBARKATION — Your boy rode through the countryside for sometime before he reached the pier where he was to embark on a troopship.

But he didn't miss any meals . . . that's also part of army planning . . . and sandwiches went along with his unit, enough to satisfy the inner man until the next regular cooked meal rolled around.

The last part of his journey was aboard a ferry. It was dark night now and the ferry was jammed and your boy stood there for the short journey, pretty quiet again.

As the ferry nosed into the dock beside which lay the troop ship, there was that camp band again to try to pep things up. "East Side, West Side" didn't get them through and "Anchors Aweigh" left him a little cold.

But then a portly non-com went struggling up the gangplank to the dock under his load and the band broke into "Mister Five by Five" and your boy and the other boys figured the band was kidding the non-com a little and they started to laugh and whistle and hoot and the tension was broken again and they were relaxed.

They came up the gangplank and trotted onto the pier and lined up and waited for the next move.

A unit was already going aboard and your boy had a chance to look out and study the ship that was to carry him over. In peace time he'd boast a little about taking passage on that ship but now, in her war paint he didn't even know her.

While he waited, a whole army of Red Cross workers . . . women, of course, and plenty of them young and pretty . . . moved around among the boys with lemonade and coffee and doughnuts and sandwiches and made small talk with them.

One of these girls saw her own brother off a few weeks ago. She didn't know he was going. He didn't know she would be at the pier. At that, he didn't get treatment any different than any other boy.

When the time comes that a boy is shoving off, these girls and women of the Red Cross are mother and sister to any and all of them.

Because distribution of weight is of vital importance aboard ship, your boy was told that he must not leave the section of the ship to which he was assigned at any time, unless ordered to do so.

Up the gang plank your boy went and aboard ship where guides pointed him to his destination.

He learned that because the ship was carrying 30 to 35 per cent more troops than there were sleeping accommodations he would spend 24 hours in a cabin or indoor sleeping spot then 24 hours with his bed roll on an enclosed deck, then back inside and so on for the entire time of the voyage.

He was told where his mess accommodations would be, that he would be served his meals rather than eat cafeteria style and then he bedded down for the night.

Your representative . . . the reporter . . . visited your boy aboard ship, talked with him and found that only one thing was worrying him at the moment: seasickness.

He wasn't worried about Japs. He wasn't worried about Nazis. He wasn't even worried about submarines . . . He figured the navy has them pretty well licked. He was just afraid that his stomach was going to take off ahead of him when that old ocean began to kick up and that old boat began to roll.

Actually, unless she encountered exceptionally heavy storms, the troop ship he was aboard would move along with about as much perceptible motion as the Empire State building.

He had expected to be a little scared but now . . . well this was it and he found he wasn't. He found he wasn't afraid of anything or anyone.

He found that the long months of training had geared him for this day. He found himself looking forward with some impatience to the end of the voyage, the assignment to the front, the first battle clash.

And he was ready and eager for it.

That was how your boy went to war.

OHIO GIVEN $39,114

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes today allocated Ohio $39,114 for the improvement of wildlife and game conditions under the Pittman-Robertson act.

Ickes Warns Midwest of Gas Ration Cut

Cut in the gasoline allowance of midwesterners is expected soon following the statement of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, also national petroleum administrator, that gasoline supplies "must be equalized throughout the nation east of the Rocky mountains." Ickes is pictured, right above, as he told a 58-member congressional committee in Chicago that depleted oil reserves make such a measure necessary. Also shown are Senator Robert M. LaFollette, jr., of Wisconsin, left, and Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, center.

SOVIET DRIVE GAINS POWER

Threatens To Encircle Key City of Kharkov, Sweeps Past Fallen Orel.

Smolensk front west of Moscow to join in the assault on Bryansk. Thus the Soviet policy apparently was to roll up the German lines in the south on a front reaching from the Sea of Azov northward beyond the Bryansk area.

Orel and Belgorod fell a month to the day after Marshal Gunther von Kluge launched his abortive offensive against the Red army's Kursk salient. Troops of the "steppe" and "Voronezh" fronts smashed the offensive and routed 38 German divisions numbering upward of 500,000 men, then lashed back.

Some of the heaviest aerial fighting of the summer raged over woodlands south and southwest of Orel, where German columns were retreating frantically over two dirt roads in an attempt to escape encirclement by eight converging Russian columns.

Hedge-hopping roads, Red air force bombers and Stormovik assault planes blasted and strafed tanks, armored vehicles, trucks and infantry clogging the two escape routes, leaving them littered with flaming wreckage and the bodies of German dead.

Seventy-two German planes were shot down in air combat over the Orel front yesterday and 66 over the Belgorod area.

Premier Marshal Josef Stalin, in his capacity of supreme commander of Soviet armed forces, told the southern-central front armies that their victories had exposed "the German legend that Soviet troops allegedly are unable to carry out an offensive in the summer."

"Eternal glory to the heroes who fell in the struggle for freedom of our country!" the order of the day concluded. "Death to the German occupants!"

The fall of Belgorod indicated that a flanking drive against Kharkov, 40 miles to the south, may be next. Kharkov, like Belgorod, was recaptured by the Russians last February in their winter offensive, but they were forced to yield both to a German counter-offensive launched from the banks of the Dnieper river.

Though the pursuit of the enemy from Orel was bringing the Russians constantly closer to Bryansk, 75 miles to the west, some sources suggested that an all-out attack on that bastion would await the capture of Kharkov, whose defenses are less formidable.

The capture of Orel and Belgorod also cleared the important Moscow-Kharkov railroad to a point less than 40 miles above Kharkov, enabling the Russians to move supplies and reinforcements quickly to that front for a large-scale attack.

Reds Ask New Front For '43 Victory

MOSCOW —(AP)— An urgent appeal for speedy establishment of a second front in Europe came today from the Soviet publication "War and the Working Classes," which asserted it would be "the key to victory over Hitler in 1943."

Declaring that the war had reached a turning point with Axis defeats on the Russian front, in Tunisia and Sicily, the trade union magazine said that "the victory to freedom-loving countries over Hitlerite Germany is possible in the very near future."

Creation of a second front should divert at least 60 German divisions from Russia, the article said.

HIGHWAY SEEN AIRPORT SNAG

ing the highway moved so it won't interfere with the airport.

Grimes said two state highway men have been making a preliminary inspection of the airport site this week with a view to mapping a new route for the highway. He said, however, that his office has received no instructions from Columbus to begin a survey or obtain a right-of-way for the relocated highway.

Mayor Locke was told several days ago in Columbus that the state highway department has no funds allocated for the relocation because it is a federal job and the highway department's budget for the year was set up many months ago without knowledge of the need for relocating Route 13 at the airport.

Three city officials, the mayor, service-safety director, and engineer, are looking for an appraiser and negotiator to do the city's bargaining for the 1,000 acres of land that will be needed to expand the airport.

City council Tuesday night authorized the three officials to start the negotiations and set up $500 to finance the cost of the preliminary appraisal and to pay a man to present the city's proposal to property owners in the airport area.

REPORT FDR GIVES UP ON SUBSIDY PLAN

meat prices by direct subsidies may be abandoned because of Jones' conviction that they are "unworkable."

As the new program now stands, it represents a victory for farm bloc leaders who have long contended that any "realistic" program of stabiliaztion must take into consideration increasing costs of farm production. The plan likewise is expected to be met with approval by the farm-conscious congress, particularly because abandonment of the subsidy issue will be interpreted as being a congressional "victory" over the executive branch of the government.

Congress will be asked to approve the new program when Jones and other administration leaders lay their proposal before the house and senate and ask for appropriations for the Commodity Credit Corporation to carry it out.

Boosts Price of Frozen Foods

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The Office of Price Administration today authorized an increase in prices for the 1943 pack of frozen fruits, berries and vegetables to cover increases in labor costs since last October.

In some cases the OPA said, the increase will be negligible while in others the cost to the consumer may rise two and three cents a pound.

Price Administrator Prentiss Brown said that the increased prices were based upon higher wages sanctioned by the War Labor Board and had the approval of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson.

Brown Cracks Down On OPA Talkers

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today cracked down on unauthorized public statements by OPA employes and virtually turned over the keys to the agency to Chester Bowles, new general manager.

In a staff memorandum which accompanied an administrative order setting up Bowles as "senior deputy administrator," Brown said:

"No public statements by any employe of OPA shall be made without prior clearance with the responsible official of the information department, who on all matters of importance shall clear with the senior deputy administrator.

"This includes statements to the press, press interviews, radio addresses, and any other form of public statement on official business."

ITALY'S UNREST SEETHES ANEW

News of Allied Victories and Badoglio Action Stir Up Dissatisfaction.

the long session was the enactment of a series of measures continuing the destruction of the Fascist party structure, revising methods of administering the country's penal code, abolishing racial laws and instituting severe controls of the press for the duration of the war.

A royal decree was published proclaiming the formal dissolution of the Fascist party grand council, the chamber of corporations, and other branches of the party. The decree ordered the removal of all Fascist signs and insignia and changed the title "Duce Fascism" to "chief of government, premier and secretary of state."

The Tribune De Geneve in a Rome dispatch' approved by the Italian censor said the new government is "firmly determined to continue the war and is asking the Italian people to defend their liberties by strict collaboration with German national socialism."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 6, 1943.

Some suspicious Italians now seem to fear that they are being drawn into peace.

A peculiarity noted among military men is that they seldom talk unless they have something to say.

A former ballet dancer has been dismissed from his position as principal economic analyst for OEW—but surely there must have been something else against him.

Clean Up Meat Supply Sources NOW!

A MAJORITY of people take it for granted that "somebody" looks after such things as assuring proper cleanliness of the sources and distribution processes of a city's food supply, but, according to Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, this is not being done in the case of some of the meat brought into Mansfield.

There has been a quite general impression, it seems, that ALL meat legitimately offered for sale is "government inspected," but Dr. Wild says this is not true and that meat from non-inspected sources constitute a serious health threat in the Mansfield area.

If, as Dr. Wild says—and there is no reason to doubt his word—some of the meat being sold in Mansfield comes from nauseating sources not subject to inspection, with "rats running over meat supplies in store basements," local clean-up action should be NOW, instead of waiting to see whether the state intends to do anything about it.

As Dr. Wild indicates, the topic is not a pleasant one, but it is one on which the meat-consuming public is entitled to be informed.

The health department, city council and all responsible officials—city, county and state—are obligated to proceed without delay in correcting the condition to which Dr. Wild has directed attention.

Crop Prospects Brighten

DESPITE excessive rainfall over a large area this year, American crops appear to be doing quite well. The department of agriculture reports that from present indications this year's food production will probably surpass last year's record by 4 per cent Earlier estimates had predicted a loss in output.

There is the further statement, however, that per capita consumption will fall to nearly 4 per cent below the 1942 figure. That means presumably a little less, instead of a little more, for the average American consumer.

Military, lend-lease and other war requirements, which are about double last year's demand, naturally cut down the supply for domestic use. But if it were necessary or desirable to spread the crops around more liberally than is now planned among friends and allies in foreign lands, Americans could give up an even larger percentage without going hungry. The current program actually figures on more than last year's supply for American civilians, in pork, eggs, chickens, milk, fresh citrus fruits, canned juices, dried fruits, potatoes and dry beans.

Watermelon Night at Johns Park

TONIGHT'S "watermelon festival" at Johns park is one of those delightful community affairs which merit patronage and encouragement.

Residents in the vicinity of Johns park started this "get-together" idea more than a third of a century ago, in the early stages of development of this attractive recreation center, and are to be commended for the sustained interest and activity with which they have carried it along.

Those who remember the hard work that went into clearing and beautifying the tract of ground in the northwest part of the city, which was bequeathed for park purposes, will have better understanding of the sentiment that surrounds this pleasant recreation spot, and many will drive out tonight for an hour of relaxation and renewal of acquaintanceships.

Georgia Lowers Voting Age

DECISION in Georgia to lower the legal voting age to 18, by constitutional amendment, it not likely to cause any pell-mell rush by other states to take similar action.

Georgia, it will be remembered, is one of the few remaining states to levy a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting, as well as to otherwise deprive a considerable percentage of citizens of their constitutional right to vote.

Governor Ellis Arnell, of Georgia, announces intention to promote adoption of a plank in the 1944 Democratic national platform endorsing voting privilege at the age of 18.

A question now arising in Georgia is whether this action will extend full rights of citizenship at the age of 18, such as serving on juries, owning property, entering into contracts, marrying without restriction, and the like.

Like Nebraska, as the only state with a unicameral legislature, Georgia's experiment with 18-year-old voters may be better to watch for awhile than to hurriedly follow.

Primitive Traits of Japanese

NOW THAT the American army and people have had opportunity to make closer study of the Japs, it appears that they are not supermen at all, either militarily or otherwise. By modern standards they are mostly about half civilized, according to the ideas of leading western nations. Real culture, according to European and American standards, exists among them in only small degree. As antagonists, both their common soldiers and their officers seem to fall far short of what the western nations consider "civilized warfare."

Their code of honor in combat is very primitive. Indeed, they fight more like savages than civilized men, resorting to tricks and cruelties that most white races would not practice except perhaps in forced retaliation.

They are technically bound by treaties to observe the normal rules of "civilized warfare," and after many breaches of this code early in the war, they are reported as treating prisoners somewhat less cruelly. But in actual combat the Japs mostly use such savage methods that Americans still have to "fight fire with fire," so comparatively few prisoners are taken.

Home is also defined as "a place where you can eat and leave without paying a dime to get your hat back."

Some of the folks who "give till it hurts" are apparently very sensitive to pain.

ITALY'S NEW DICTATOR

Fall of Orel and Catania Marks Progress In Allied Pincer Move

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

A COUPLE more stout spikes have been driven into the coffin of Hitlerism in the capture of two highly strategic cities—Orel on the flaming Russian front, and ancient Catania in the northeast corner of Sicily. Both these cities were vital anchor points for the Nazis.

The heavily fortified and strongly held railway center of Orel has for almost two years been the hinge for Hitler's great battle line between this point, not far below Moscow, and the Sea of Azov.

Catania, crouching under the great volcano of Etna, has been the powerful position to which the Nazis and Italians hooked the left wing of the front which they threw across the last remaining tip of northeast Sicily in defense of Messina and access to the Italian mainland, only two miles across the strait from that port.

These two operations, while widely separated and seemingly having little relation to each other, are parts of offensives which in reality are acting as a pair of mighty pincers on the German front in Russia.

This is so because (1) if the Russians have the reserve power with which to follow up their notable capture of Orel, it will endanger Hitler's entire right wing, and because (2) victory in Sicily brings the Allies nearer to possible invasion of the Balkans, which would further jeopardize that Nazi right wing.

In short, Hitler is being pushed steadily towards that day when he will have to pull back his entire vast line of more than a thousand miles in Russia in order to reach new positions which will afford greater security.

* * *

WHILE this is a historic moment for the Allies, we should remember that these two captures are parts of continuing operations. Fierce fighting lies ahead in both theaters.

In Sicily the terrain within the remaining triangle which the Axis forces are defending is rugged and hilly. It's well adapted to defense and has been strongly fortified.

There are said to be close to 100,000 Axis troops assigned to the desperate task of holding this "last ditch," something more than half of them being Germans.

Thus we have the makings of a great battle among the innumerable hilly strongholds, many of which probably will have to be taken at the point of the bayonet — assuming that the Axis forces don't fold up, and there's been no indication of this yet among the Germans.

Ultimately the enemy must surrender or be annihilated, for there is no escape from this triangular trap for the vast majority of the Axis troops.

It's too soon to assay the full import of the red capture of Orel. The cracking of this major fortress represents one of the great victories of the war. Into it have gone the lives of many scores of thousands of fighting men of both Germany and Russia.

Incidentally, it's only ten days ago that I received a letter from an anonymous Nazi sympathizer, signing himself "A Soldier," who took me to task for saying that the indications were the Reds would take Orel. He said it was a preposterous suggestion, and sang the praises of the boche. There are a lot of these Fifth Columnists still about.

The fighting which has preceded this victory has been titanic —reminiscent of the struggle at Stalingrad. The Russians drove forward, in the face of the best defense which Hitler could muster, until they all but had Orel surrounded. Complete encirclement would have meant the annihilation of a Nazi force of some 250,000 men, but it would appear that the German command has been able to withdraw many of them.

Orel not only is a strong point, but it is a vital railway center. Its capture will enable the Russians to reopen vital rail communications between Moscow and the southern sectors.

The ultimate effect of the fall of Orel might be catastrophic for the Germans, if the Russians have strength to develop it. However, this is no time to jump to sweeping conclusions.

Dave Boone Says:

WITH our side taking the Munda airfield from the Japs and capturing Catania and Paterno from Adolf's cracking crack divisions the decadent democracies look less decadent by the hour. The Axis partners—what's left of the firm—must be asking "who sold us on that idea we were supermen?"

* * *

Home folks complaining of the heat, the humidity and the gas rations should feel pretty small as they read the great war news and realize the terrific ordeal the fighting men are going through to win these uphill victories.

* * *

I'll bet Benito, low man on the Axis totem pole, gets a chuckle as he reads what the Russians are doing to the great Hitler who has been so scornful of other losers.

* * *

There's a report that Adolf is a sick man and I figure it's the understatement of the year.

* * *

And if he was sick yesterday he must feel much worse today.

* * *

I hope the attending physician hasn't ordered him to keep cool, not get excited about anything and not let anything upset him. That would be rubbing it in. And you don't suppose the doctor has added "aw don't worry" do you?

Don't Make Soap.

Frightened by false rumors of an impending soap shortage, many families have started making their own soap. As a result munition manufacturers are losing the by-product glycerine needed by our army and navy. This could be very serious.

It cannot be reiterated too much that the government needs all the fats it can get, to make munitions. There is no soap shortage, actual or pending. Those who make their own soap not only get a poorer product, at the cost of much messy trouble, but they are hampering the war effort.

Please don't make your own soap.—Cleveland Press.

Daytime Sleep For War Workers.

—By DR. CLENDENING

MY MAIL is full of complaints from war workers who are on the night shift and can't sleep, or think they can't sleep, in the daytime.

There is no question that there is a real problem involved here and one that needs considerable patience and thought. I think that planned adjustment is the best answer to most people's problems along these lines.

By adjustment, I mean individual adjustment by will power. We are animals habituated to sleep at night and we can't change these century-old habits in the twinkling of an eye. The accommodations necessary are to make the bedroom as nearly an imitation of the bedroom at night as possible. Noise and light are to be excluded and this can be done nearly anywhere, but you may have to set your will power to work on it.

Adjustment Take Time.

The adjustments cannot be made, as I said, in a day, or even in a week, and the worker will find that as time goes on his restlessness and apprehension leave him and he is sleeping better.

Don't try napping on a couch. Make a good job of it, take off the clothes, get into bed and read for a while in a relaxed condition and nine times out of ten your troubles will be over before you know it.

I am convinced that if a conscientious effort is made to overcome insomnia by psychologic means, it will always meet with success and it will certainly be worthwhile to do away with the all to frequent hypnotic habit which, encouraged by modern doctors, is growing by leaps and bounds.

There is no scientific reason for suggestion that sleep of equal depth and length and equal restorative function cannot be had in the daytime as nighttime.

Hopkinses to Leave White House As Tension Nears Breaking Point

WASHINGTON—Only members of the Roosevelt family knew it, but relations between Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins for a long time have been at the breaking point.

It is with great relief, therefore, that Mrs. Roosevelt has received the news that Harry and his wife, the former Louise Macy, finally have decided to move out of the White House and look for a home of their own.

Relations have been so cool between Hopkins and Mrs. Roosevelt that her intimate friends and family say he has actually weakened her influence with the president.

To get the full significance of this break it is important to recall that it was Mrs. Roosevelt who really promoted Harry Hopkins. She discovered him when he was a social worker in New York, first as director of the New York Tuberculosis and Health association, later as director of the New York State Temporary Emergency Relief association. FDR was then governor of New York, but it was Mrs. Roosevelt, an ardent worker for the under-privileged, who pushed Harry with her husband.

Household Hopkins.

TODAY, however, Mrs. Roosevelt's closest intimates complain that Hopkins even usurps Mrs. Roosevelt's household duties. On at least one occasion, for instance, he rearranged the seating at a White House dinner after the First Lady had given specific instructions to the major domo as to how the guests were to be arranged. The first news Mrs. Roosevelt had of the rearranged seating was when she arrived at the dinner table.

On another occasion Mrs. Roosevelt had an engagement with Elmer Davis, director of War Information, regarding a speech she was to deliver. Abruptly, Davis telephoned cancelling the engagement. Mrs. Roosevelt blamed the cancellation on Harry Hopkins.

Other incidents have come back to the family where Harry Hopkins has remarked to the president, "Look what your wife has said now," or similar disparaging statements.

The First Lady has confessed to friends that she has been upset and worried over the fact that her husband has deviated sharply from his previous liberal policy and has been unwilling to adopt her progressive suggestions as he once did.

Harry and Winston.

SHE HAS blamed two people for this change—Harry Hopkins and Winston Churchill. It is no secret among White House intimates that she believes Hopkins worships the ground the British Prime Minister walks on, and leaps to promote his every wish.

While Mrs. Roosevelt is a great champion of British-American cooperation, and herself pioneered the plan to permit British children to come to this country during the air raids of 1940, nevertheless she does not think that this country should follow blindly all British policy, or worship everything about the British.

And she feels that her husband is too closely swayed, for the good of the nation, by the Churchill-Hopkins alliance.

Note—One thing which will bring a sigh of relief to all members of the White House staff when the Hopkinses move out, is the exit of Mrs. Macy's poodles. "Mrs. Macy," as Mrs. Hopkins is still called around the White House, has one room of the Executive Mansion devoted to her poodles. And woe be it to any of the Roosevelt grandchildren who opens the door of this room by mistake.

Beaverbrook's Jewels.

THE REAL story of the mysterious and much-denied emeralds which Lord Beaverbrook allegedly gave Mrs. Harry Hopkins for a wedding present can now be told.

Lord Beaverbrook and the Hopkinses always denied that she received an emerald bracelet as a wedding present and this denial was absolutely correct.

Actually the emeralds were given to Mrs. Hopkins by Jock Whitney, a long time friend whom many people expected would marry Mrs. Macy, but who married the former Mrs. Jimmy Roosevelt instead.

Lord Beaverbrook gave the bride diamonds and therefore was quite correct in denying that he gave her emeralds.

What happened was that Beaverbrook handed Hopkins a little package, explaining that it was a present for his bride. Harry put it in his pocket and did not open it until he arrived in the United States.

Then, in order to pay customs, he sent it to a jeweler for appraisal. The diamonds were of an old-style cut and worth about $4,000.

Inner Circle Debate.

WHETHER Hopkins was ethically correct in permitting his wife to accept the gift is still a subject of debate inside the inner circle. Under a law passed in the days of George Washington, no federal official is permitted to receive a gift from a foreign government.

This law, still on the statute books, was passed so that no government official would feel under obligation to a foreign government. As a result Roosevelt has not been permitted to receive gifts of stamps for his collection, from foreign officials.

Actually Lord Beaverbrook was not an official of the British government when he gave the diamonds to Mrs. Hopkins, though he had been in charge of obtaining airplanes and munitions from the USA. Also it was Mrs. Hopkins, not her husband who received the present.

However, since Harry is in virtual charge of lend-lease, many members of the administration feel that he was ethically wrong in permitting his wife to accept the present.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Ernie Sure Does Get Acquainted; Here's More About Folks Aboard Ship.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—A few more sketches of men on our ship:

Dick Minogue. He has been in the navy six years and intends to stay. He is a bosun's mate first class, and may be a chief before long. He comes from White Bear Lake, Minn., and they call him "Minny" aboard ship.

It is men like Minogue who form the backbone of the present-day navy. He is young and intelligent, yet strong and salty enough for any job. He definitely has the sea about him, and it is modern sea. He wears his bosun's pipe from a cord around his neck, and a white hat cocked way down over one eye. He says the worst moment he ever had in the navy was while piping a British admiral over the side. Dick had a chew of tobacco in his mouth, and right in the middle of his refrain the whistle got full of tobacco juice and went gurgly.

ARCH FULTON. He is an electrician's mate second class, from Cleveland. Before the war he was a lineman for the Cleveland Illuminating company. He is married and has two children.

Fulton is 37—much older than most of the crew. He is a Scotsman. He came to America 20 years ago. His parents are still living at Kilmarnock, Scotland. He has a brother who is a sergeant-major in the British army, and a sister who is a British WREN.

Arch has a short pompadour that slants forward, giving him the effect of standing with his back to the wind. He has a dry Scottish humor and he takes the navy in his stride. He used to read this column back in Cleveland, so you can see he's a smart man.

WE HAVE 11 Negro boys aboard, all in the stewards' department. They wait table in the officers' mess, and run the wardroom pantry that keeps hot coffee 24 hours a day. They have a separate compartment of their own for quarters, but otherwise they live just as the white sailors do.

They are all quiet, nice boys and a credit to the ship. Three of them are exceedingly tall and three exceedingly short. They all have music in their souls. Sometimes I have to laugh—when the wardroom radio happens to be playing a hot tune during meals I've noticed them grinning to themselves and dancing ever so slightly as they go about their serving.

I haven't room to give more than a couple of their names. One is George Edward Mallory, of Orange, Va. He is 32, and before the war worked as an unloader at a chain grocery store in Orange. He has been in the navy for a year and has been operated on for appendicitis since coming to the Mediterranean. He got seasick once but it doesn't bother him any more. He is tall, quiet and serious. He had never waited table before but he's an expert now.

* * *

ANOTHER one is Fred Moore, who is the littlest, meekest and blackest one on ship. Fred has a tiny mustache that you can't even see, and a perpetually startled look on his good-natured face. He is very quiet and shy.

His home is in South Birmingham, Ala. He is just 21 and has been in the navy only since March. He likes it fine, and thinks he may stay in after the war. Before joining up he did common labor at army camps and fruit farms.

Fred has a gift. He is a wizard at baking delicate and beautiful pastries. He makes all the pastry desserts for the officers' mess. He had never done any cooking before joining the navy, except to fry a few hamburgers at a short-order joint. He can't explain his knack for pastry-baking.

It's just like somebody who can play the piano beautifully without ever taking lessons. The whole ship pays tribute to his little streak of genius.

Fred says he has never been seasick nor very homesick, but during some of our close shaves in action he says he "sure was scared."

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

Where Trails Cross

THE GREEN patches of thick tall weeds and briers along the slope are penetrated by a system of highways At late afternoon I sat upon a low secluded stump near which four trails met, to watch and listen. Through a little opening in the brush I saw rabbits of all ages pass along—not in pairs, as one might think, but singly.

First came a fine large doe that had raised her family and now felt free from domestic cares. She moved with grace and a kind of ladylike restraint—but there was sparkle in her eye.

Two minutes after she had passed—and my thoughts were still upon her—a tiny young mite hopped timidly to the intersection of the trails, stood on its haunches, twiddled its moist nose and looked confused. Not certain which road to take, it hesitantly started west, and disappeared.

A half grown youngster followed shortly, smelt the grass at the center of the trails, stood up and looked about. This one deliberately decided to go eastward, through thick tangles of greenbrier.

Traffic lagged for ten minutes or so. Then a bold sturdy rustle moved down from the north. Tall weeds shook and dry leaves crunched, slender sassafras sprouts waved as something passed. Presently a heavy face appeared, and a strong muscular body, at rest, filled the spacious intersection completely. I was amazed at the buck's huge size. He sniffed leisurely and very confidently about the tangled weeds, then reared his broad furry body to full height as if to peer across the tops and view the scenic wonders of the valley. He cocked long sensitive ears in my direction and stared at me. I stared back and tried not to move a muscle. Perhaps he felt my presence, although the wind blew down the slope and he could not scent me. Silently I wagered with myself the course he would follow, and when I saw him start unwaveringly upon the path the lady-doe had taken, I felt satisfied. He was a splendid animal who had evaded dogs and guns for a year or two. I wished him luck and another year of grace and sturdy progeny.

It would be interesting to have a blueprint of the maze of trails and highways in any pasture or thicket. Wild life possesses the land more completely than humans are capable of. There are broad smooth trunk lines, narrow grassy byroads, lover's lanes with soft mossy stones to sit upon—even roads that lead to rabbit night clubs where games and fun and frolic are kept up wildly until the moonlit hours of early morning.

SETS PACE IN MASS OUTPUT OF ALLIED BOMBS

Ohio Plant Simplifies Job By Using Single Dies To Make Casings.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Some of the experts raised a skeptical eyebrow and doubted that bomb casings could be made that way.

It is another story of American ingenuity and enterprise licking a war production problem.

Casings for 1,000-pound bombs roll off the production line in comforting numbers in the Columbus plant of Blaw-Knox, whose engineering department proved that a forging process hitherto untried in mass production could be applied to molten steel to fashion the stubby nose of an aerial bomb.

Ralston Steel Car company, Columbus industry long experienced in the processing of heavy metal, is cooperating in the job of keeping 'em rolling.

In at one end of the production line go long sections of steel tubing. Out at the other end come the sleek bomb casings, forged, machined, dressed down and neatly painted, ready to be loaded with TNT and fitted with gadgets which are bombing out explosive headaches for the Axis.

Workers who labor under the slogan "More bombs today not tomorrow" are performing with clocklike regularity the job the skeptical doubted could be done.

The job is the fashioning of the rounded nose of the casing in a forging process carried out without the use of an inside die, or mold. Huge hydraulic presses, exerting pressure from 600 to 1,800 tons, squeeze and crimp the straight end of the tubing into a rounded shape with no mold inside to guide the fashioning of the metal.

Some engineers thought it couldn't be done in regular production, that two dies, one on the outside and one on the inside, would be necessary to contain the glowing metal in the shape desired.

Blaw-Knox proved that it could be done with only one die—the outside one in the giant press—and in regular production.

Other plants produce bomb casings by using two dies, but Blaw-Knox didn't have time to set up for that when the call came from army ordnance for bombs—lots of them. The contracts are administered by the Cleveland ordnance district.

The use of two dies, explains George M. Croft, manager of the bomb division of the company, requires heavier presses for the forging operations. Ralston, which was to handle the forging end of the production battle, had smaller presses but none capable of exerting the thousands of tons of pressure which the two-die operation requires. Neither were the heavy machines, new or used, to be had without delay from other sources.

The emergency called for emergency treatment, and it go it.

Smaller presses were available in Ralston's shop and could be secured secondhand elsewhere. The purchasing department went out and got them. Some were in need of repair, but engineers and technicians pitched in while the one-die process was being perfected and put them into shape. The pottery industry, among others, was called upon to help with additional equipment. Idle pottery furnaces were purchased and converted to the job of heating the ends of the tubing before they are placed in the presses for shaping.

Other war plants have now adopted the one-die casing process.

Forty-five days after the contract letting, Ralston and Blaw-Knox officials disclosed, two-piece bomb casings began to roll off the production line.

Now the tubing moves in a steady stream to the furnaces from the cutting floor, where it is sheared by torches into casing lengths. The section, and end heated into glowing metal by the furnace, goes to the press and the rounded nose is pressed into shape. The tube moves on down the line, the tail section is fashioned, the nose and tail are machined for fittings and lugs are attached for hanging on the bomb releases in the Allied plane's bomb bay.

The casings come from the line an Allied product, not an American fighting tool alone. The lugs do the job. Two sets are attached. One fits American planes' bombing bays. The other allows their use in British bombers.

Further on the casing receives a de-greasing bath and then moves into a "bath" of another kind, where shot forced under terrific air pressure against the shell inside and out remove scale and rust. Later on an inside coating of acid-proof asphalt paint is applied and spray guns cover the casing with a reddish paint. Workmen attach fittings to nose and tail, install rings and roll the finished casing, after final inspection, into railroad cars for shipment to arsenals to be loaded.

Workmen who need it are provided the incentive to keep the casings rolling. "Penalty row" helps turn the trick. A worker who commits an avoidable error or fails to deliver on a promised task receives public recognition. A piece of his necktie or a part of a shirt sleeve is snipped off and pinned to a bulletin board in "penalty row." That goes for the boss as well as the newest worker.

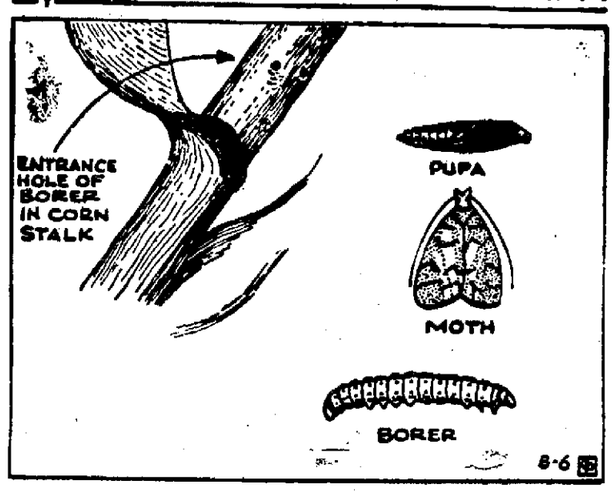
Lots of workers, of course, don't need an incentive.

Take the new employe named Tom for example. He went to work recently after recovering from battle wounds which brought honorable discharge from the army.

Tom was wounded in the Pacific. The gunfire which cut him down caused other casualties.

It also killed his brother.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Keep Eyes Alert for Corn Borer In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

VIGILANCE against the corn borer is the price you must pay for the pleasure of growing your own "eating" corn in the Victory garden. Since one cannot spray this pest into the limbo, there remains only one control for corn borer and that is sanitation in the corn patch.

The life cycle of the European corn borer from pupa to moth to borer is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. In the caterpillar stage the corn borer feeds on the leaves of the corn plant, then bores into the tassels, the stalks and the ears. Now is a good time to watch for the telltale entrance hole of the borer in corn stalks as illustrated in the Garden-Graph.

The borer lives over winter in the corn plant, either in harvested stalks or in stubble left in the garden. In the spring overwintering borers change to the resting stage (pupae). Later the borers pupate and change to moths. The moths then lay eggs after which the borers begin to hatch ready to attack the corn again.

Since sanitation is the only practical control, the Victory gardener with a corn patch should cut all stalks close to the ground after harvesting the ears, and burn them and all remains of the corn plant. The less corn debris there is for the borer to winter over in, the less the infestation will be next spring.

Maybe You Never Knew About This Little Chore

but it's really important

This home-maker is cleaning the condenser of her Electric Refrigerator.

By keeping the condenser free from dust and dirt, she enables her Electric Refrigerator to operate better, and at the same time saves current and wear on the motor and compressor.

Notice she is using a brush on the "coils". The nozzle attachment of a floor cleaner, or a hand cleaner, also is useful.

To get at the condenser in your refrigerator, have the man of the house pull it out from the wall. The job won't take long—and will help your Electric Refrigerator to go on saving you food, time, work, health and money.

Other Reminders on Caring for your Electric Refrigerator

1. Defrost often. Do not let frost get thicker than ¼ inch.
2. Keep cabinet clean. Wash outside with lukewarm water and mild soap. Wash inside with mild solution of warm water and baking soda.
3. Don't overload. Don't put hot food in it. Don't store in it food that does not need refrigeration. Don't leave door open longer than necessary.
4. Check door gasket, latch, hinges. If gasket is dry and hard, replace it. If latch or hinges are loose, tighten them. Make sure plug is inserted securely in convenience outlet.
5. Oil. If your refrigerator has an open type mechanism, it requires periodic oiling, to wear well and run smoothly.

CEREMONY READ AT ST. MARK'S CHURCH

Miss Martha Piper Becomes Bride of Pfc. Charles Daugherty Thursday Morning at Lutheran Church; Couple Leaves on Trip.

NUPTIAL vows were exchanged Thursday morning at 11:30 by Miss Martha Piper, Chester avenue, and Pfc. Charles R. Daugherty, jr., of Camp Rucker, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daugherty, sr., 338 Newman street. The double ring service was read by Rev. Martin Wappner before the altar of the St. Mark's Lutheran church.

Attending the bride was Miss Athena Pouls, who wore a white frock with blue accessories and a corsage of roses. The bride was attired in a pale blue street length dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of roses.

Donald Daugherty was his brother's best man. Nuptial music was played preceding the ceremony which was witnessed by friends and relatives.

Following the service the young couple left for a trip. Upon their return the bride will reside at 113½ South Main street. She is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Before his induction Pfc. Daugherty was employed by the Barnes Manufacturing company.

Mother Takes Daughter's Boy Friend

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 19 years in love with a boy of 19. Six months ago he and I went together, and he told me he loved me. But I did not return the feeling and told him so. We drifted apart and he continued to come over, but on a more impersonal basis. We haven't gone out together for two months.

In the meantime he has been coming over about three times a week, but not to see me. He's interested in my mother, who is really very pretty and is often taken for my sister. She also is attracted to this boy, much to the distress of my father and me. Mother and this young man have exchanged pictures with very personal autographs written on them. He has given her his class ring and pin, of which I know he is very fond. They have eyes only for each other, and father and I are merely outsiders when he is at the house.

Please, Miss Fairfax, help us. Everyone else seems to know about my mother and the boy, but they don't seem to know what a scandal they are causing.

T. P. P.

Love has a way of making people "leave the rails." They become emotionally sunk in some affair which spells disaster for all parties concerned. I've known of dozens of cases similar to the one of which you write me, and they've all resulted in tragedy. What's to be expected with such a disparity of years and the possible mother-in-law turned into wife?

The only thing for which you can hope and pray is that your mother will see the dangers into which she is heading. Love cannot thrive on ridicule, and while the romance may seem to the two involved as made in Heaven, to their relations, friends, neighbors and the world at large, it's just comic. Ridicule is a powerful social weapon. It often succeeds when common sense fails, if the principals are made aware of it.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a boy off and on for a year. He is a June graduate, and I would like to send him a graduation gift. I don't want to give him an expensive gift, but something he won't be ashamed of. Will you please give me some suggestions?

Dora S.

If your boy friend expects to keep on at school, a leather portfolio for home work would be a nice gift. Boys like candy too, so you might send him a box of candy. A fountain pen and pencil set is good, or a writing case of stationery, a sterling silver buckle for his belt, a tie set, a subscription to one of the many men's favorite magazines, or monogrammed handkerchiefs.

If he's expected to go into the service, perhaps one of the service items would be good—toilet kit, money belt, shoe-shine kit, a game set, etc.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I heartily agree with Mrs. F who tells of not being able to get a war job because she is 60 years old. I've had the same trouble and although I've had experience I could not connect. I've been an active person all my life, ... raised a family of sons, one of whom is now in the Air Force.

I can knit, crochet and sew, although my eyes would not permit me to do fine work steadily. But I'm sure there must be something I could do. I don't see why older women should be asked to just take care of children. In the last war I took care of my own. And I think young mothers of today should do likewise and not try to pass the buck to the older women who have done their bit.

I'm sure we have more stability, endurance and patience than the younger generation, and most of us have no hangovers, etc.

R. O. C.

At a recent press conference of Mrs. Roosevelt's which I attended, the question of the employability of women no longer young came up for discussion. Miss Florence Hall, head of the Woman's Land Army, said that no age limit had been set because women over 50 were often capable of doing more work than younger women.

After listening to innumerable discussions on the subject, it seems to me the fault is with the men who have the power to employ them. True sons of Adam, they imagine that more work is to be had from the young miss with the peaches and cream complexion and the string-bean figure. They do not take into account that this bit of loveliness not infrequently has her eye out the window for the possible man. The older woman's emotional problems are behind her, and usually she can give a better account of herself in getting out a volume of work than the lovely young thing.

Presbyterian Circles Hold Joint Meeting

Circles Two and Three of the First Presbyterian church were the only groups of that congregation that met yesterday. Sessions for Circles One, Four and Five were postponed until September.

A joint session of Two and Three was held at South Park with 30 members and guests present. A covered dish dinner was served at the noon hour. Devotions were led by Miss Vera Smythe of Circle Two. During the social hour a playlet was presented by a group of youngsters from the Children's Theater.

Later business sessions were held by the respective groups. Mrs. A. C. Ferrell presided for Circle Two and Mrs. Clarence Netting for Circle Three. The next meeting of Circle Two will be held Sept. 2 with the program in charge of Mrs. Richard Tappan, who will show movies. On the same date Mrs. M. M. Collins, 210 Mapledale avenue, will entertain Circle Three at her home, assisted by Mrs. Fred Werner, Mrs. E. H. Post and Mrs. Nellie Lantz. Devotions will be led by Mrs. Virginia Mather.

Members of Circle Four will meet Sept. 2 at the church with Mrs. Nellie Mitchell and Mrs. Mary Phelps as hostesses. They will hold a business session previous to the guild meeting at the church on Aug. 19. Members of Circle One will also meet for a brief session preceding the meeting at the church on Aug. 19. Their next regular meeting will be on Sept. 2 with the place to be announced later.

The guild meeting on Aug. 19 will consist of an informal party for the women of the church. This will take the place of the annual picnic. A play will be presented during the program.

Franklin Club Honors Agent

More than 100 were present last evening when members of the Franklin Art club and their families met for a picnic party at Franklin church. Mrs. C. L. Bookwalter and Mrs. Hughes were in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. C. N. McGrew, the former Elizabeth Bay, Richland county home demonstration agent, was honored by the group when they presented her with a gift. A four-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom decorated the table. The next meeting will be Sept. 8 with Mrs. Sam Widders and Mrs. Marie Leedy as hostesses, the place to be announced later.

ONE GUEST PRESENT.

Miss Mary Lou Lorentz, 153 Ford street, was hostess to members of the Senior 4-H Cutups club Wednesday evening at her home. One guest, Miss Mary Pittenger, was present. The evening was spent socially and late in the evening refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held Aug. 16, with the place to be announced later.

Teensters Produce Novel Costumes

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

A slick chick who's hep to the jive knows it's strictly in the groove these days to make with the needle and thread—also the nail polish, the paint brush, the old family ragbag or anything else that will lend oomph to the wardrobe.

Solid senders of the teen-age crowd say it's pretty potent, for instance, to paint your raincoat with jabberwocky phrases, or make a classroom jumper out of Pop's old neckties.

They consider nail-polish gadgets simply out of this world, and get burnt to a crisp over bow ties and matching hair bows, pigtail pins and jewelry made from macaroni.

They go for zany beanies, sloppy sweaters, moccasins, corduroy dresses, plaid shirts, blazers and jumpers.

They're industrious little bunnies, and labor for hours making lapel gadgets from corks and nail polish, stitching up glamor rags from outgrown dresses, thinking up new ways to decorate their beanies, fingernails or shoes.

They consider a girl who doesn't jive up her wardrobe in the approved manner a black widow, a drizzle drag or a hag-bag.

But the glamor puss who thinks up a new teen-trick to embellish her sweater or her slicker rates the supreme praise—"She's alreet!"

SUPER SOLID: The jumper made from old neckties collected from the boy friends is snazzy stuff with the teen crowd. So is the raincoat adorned with slanguage.

What to Do With Tresses That Are Sick

By MME. QUI VIVE

Beauty shop operators hear plenty of griefs; they expect the cash customers to do a lot of sobbing. Listening to the wails is part of the job. So Gertrude, who is an expert on bleaching and dyeing, wasn't a bit surprised when a young lady with a desperate look in her eyes, dashed into the place in a frenzy of despair.

Her hair, she said, has always been a lovely shimmering copper-colored crown of which she had been prideful, if not exactly vain. It was her "best point." You've heard about best points; you play them for all they're worth. Her best point had dulled. It has suddenly gone brown, and not a nice brown at that. It had a mousy look, carried a gray film.

The high priestess of the beauty shop ran her fingers through the complainer's wool, said "Hm" in a significant manner, asked a few questions. Yes, she was a WAC and she'd been at camp, and washed her hair with any old soap she happened to pick up. Maybe she had used dog soap, she didn't really know. The last time the water had been barely warm. Maybe she should have her hair bleached.

"It would be a crying shame to use a bleach or a dye on your hair," remarked the beauty operator. "The shafts are gummed together with soap scum. With dust sebaceous oil and soap deposits, what chance have copper glints to show through? I doubt if a soap shampoo will get it clean. We'll have to try some other treatment."

The operator gave her thatch a dry cleaning, working strand by strand. Then she washed the hair with eggs. First there was a thorough rinsing with hot water. Several eggs, beaten slightly, were frictioned into hair and scalp. A rousing rinsing with a spray and a strong current of water followed. More eggs were applied. Another rinsing. Then a vinegar rinse that was washed away with clear water.

Our unhappy customer was her shining self again, flaunting her copper-colored halo in all its glory.

"It is not easy to get hair clean, even when it is in normal condition," said Gertrude. "You've no idea how many home shampooers come here, asking for help. Some of them fancy they can rinse the soap out in a wash basin. It can't be done. Many women nowadays are too busy to find time to come to us. What they are doing to their hair is something terrible. They don't take the trouble to find a good shampoo medium. Some very good toilet soaps are not suitable for shampooing; they won't rinse out. As for rubbing the bar of soap over the head, that's a beauty crime."

USE CANNISTERS

To keep staple groceries that are bought in bulk from spilling out of their cloth or paper bags and messing closet shelves, transfer them to cannisters that can be washed inside and out. The latest cannister sets, made of transparent colorless plastic material, are not only washable, but make it possible to keep a constant check on the quantity of flour, salt, sugar etc. on hand without opening the lids.

Ruth Mengert Honored When Two Entertain

Mrs. G. W. Casperson and daughter, Virginia, 500 Crescent road, entertained in honor of Miss Ruth Mengert, bride-elect of Boyd Stull of San Diego, Calif., last evening at their home. Miss Mengert will leave Mansfield Monday for the west to join her fiance for their exchange of nuptial vows.

Twenty-one guests were present Thursday evening and enjoyed the diversion of bridge. High score awards were won by Mrs. Frank Mengert, Miss Jeannette Werner, Miss Theodora Wendt and Miss Patty Oberlander, all of whom presented the gifts to the bride-to-be.

A dessert-luncheon was served early in the evening at small tables decorated with small crystal baskets filled with summer flowers. Later the guests surprised Miss Mengert with a shower of kitchen gifts. The hostesses gave her a gift of crystal.

Final Nuptial Party Given at Childs Home

Mrs. Vinton Childs, 568 Garfield place, entertained last evening at her home in honor of her nephew, Sgt. Robert Hawley and his bride-to-be, Miss Mary Arnett. Their wedding will be an event of Saturday at 2:30 o'clock before the altar of the First Lutheran church. The ceremony will be open church. Following their nuptials they will leave for their home in Wilmington, N. C.

The party Thursday evening was in the illuminated garden where games and contests were the diversion. Refreshments were served at a late hour. The 28 guests surprised the young couple with a shower of wedding gifts.

Relatives and friends were in attendance for the informal reception and party.
